

GERMANY ASKS AMERICA TO AWAIT FULL FACTS

Tension Resulting From Sinking of Arabic Is Lessened By Word From German Government.

SUBMARINE COMMANDER HAS NOT YET REPORTED TO ADMIRALTY

Communication Indicates Kaiser Anxious to Avoid Break With America, and Believes Facts May Show No Just Cause for Drastic Action on Part of United States—German Ambassador Says if Any Americans Killed It Was Contrary to Intentions of German Government, Which Had No Intention of Sinking Peaceful Merchant Ship in Flagrant Manner.

By Associated Press.
Washington, August 24.—Germany, through her Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, today asked the United States not to take a final stand on the sinking of the White Star Liner Arabic until all the facts are known.

It was the first word from Germany since the disaster. The Ambassador telegraphed the State Department today saying he made the request at the instruction of his government and added that the German admiralty had not yet been able to get a report.

Count Bernstorff telegraphed from the summer embassy at Cedarhurst, L. I., asked that no steps be taken until all the facts had been ascertained and the German government has had opportunity to give its version of the sinking of the ship which cost the lives of two Americans, apparently in defiance of President Wilson's warning that such an act would be "deliberately unfriendly." The ambassador's telegram was not made public as officials were in some doubt whether to give it out here or wait for Count Bernstorff to do so in New York. Meanwhile they declined to discuss it.

His request comes as the first word from German sources since the ship was sunk five days ago and indicates that the German government may have some facts which in its opinion justify the action of the submarine commander.

It comes as the first ray of promise on a situation which admittedly was growing darker with each hour of silence on the part of Germany.

Now in view of the ambassador's request the State Department can do nothing but wait a reasonable time for word from Berlin.

Count von Bernstorff in his telegram said that if any Americans had been killed, it was contrary to the intention of the German government and that it was not the intention of the German government to sink any peaceful merchant ship in a flagrant manner.

ANOTHER ONE NOW CLAIMED

By Associated Press.

London, August 24.—The latest dispatches concerning the Riga naval battle has failed to clear up the situation. Petrograd advices make it appear that the Germans met with severe reverses, although Berlin remains silent on the subject.

The Russians now state that an additional cruiser must be added to those already reported sunk, or put out of commission.

Whether the battle cruiser Moltke attacked by a British submarine, was sunk, remains to be told.

TEUTONIC FORCES ARE CLOSING IN ON BREST LITOVSK

By Associated Press.

London, August 24.—Teutonic armies are closing in on Brest Litovsk and further progress by the Austro-Germans against the Russians in all the fields of operation except to the north of the Nieman in the Baltic provinces is claimed by Berlin today.

An Overseas Agency dispatch says in Berlin no report on the Arabic has been received, and in any event the Arabic was a British ship and on the way to obtain another cargo of ammunition.

GERMAN PRESS SAYS LITTLE

By Associated Press.

Berlin, via London, August 24.—No further details concerning the sinking of the Arabic have been published here and no comment is being made.

The papers published what purports to be a Greek dispatch to the London Telegraph quoting Joseph Tumulty, President Wilson's secretary, as saying Americans are united with the president, and will, if necessary, offer their lives to maintain the inalienable rights of Americans on land and sea.

One paper says "These inalienable rights as is known consist of using British vessels for passenger steamers."

Lima, Ohio, August 24.—Fred Gunther, 12 year old victim of hydrophobia, terrified citizens here last night for two hours, running like mad about the streets, biting telephone poles and fences and attempting to bite local citizens.

Mothers hurried their children to safety and men were afraid to go near him. He was captured by throwing a wet blanket over him.

Physicians say he will die. He was bitten ten days ago by a dog not known to have hydrophobia.

OFFICIALS WORKING ON FRANK LYNCHING

Coroner's Verdict Is That Frank Met Death at Hands of Parties Unknown—All City and County Officials Claim They Are Doing Best to Run to Earth Men Who Blackened Name of Georgia.

By Associated Press.

Marietta, Ga., August 24.—Without being able to elicit from anyone of the eleven witnesses a single clue as to the identity of any person connected with the lynching of Leo M. Frank near this city last Thursday morning, a coroner's verdict today states that Frank came to his death by hanging at the hands of parties unknown.

City and county officials testified that they had endeavored diligently to get at the facts of the lynching but so far their efforts have been of no avail.

"Of course you know these things are kept pretty close and are hard to find out," said Mayor E. Dobbs, of Marietta.

Deputy Sheriff Hicks and City Marshal Looney stated they were working hard on the case but at this time could throw no light on the identity of the parties who participated in the lynching.

The nearest discovery as to what happened in the oak grove near the Fry gun came from J. A. Benson, a Marietta merchant, who drove by the place soon after the lynching party had parked its autos by the roadside and had led Frank to the tree where death awaited him.

Mr. Benson said he had "pretty good suspicion" as to what was going on but he did not stop to see it and did not recognize anybody connected with the lynching.

W. J. Frey, owner of the place where the lynching occurred testified that when he reached the grove with two other men "there wasn't anybody in the grove but Leo M. Frank." Frey told of seeing three or four autos go by his place about 6:30 or 7 o'clock that morning and that the man he afterwards found out was Frank, was seated in a rear seat, bareheaded, and with a man on either side of him. He said Frank was dressed in what looked like a thin night shirt.

He declared he did not recognize any other person and said they all wore goggles and their faces were covered with dust.

The jury was composed of six residents of the county. Attorney John Dorsey represented the state of Georgia and Gordon Gann acted as attorney for the coroner.

THE GOVERNOR TO FIGHT FOR M'DERMOTT LAW

Columbus, O., August 24.—Governor Willis this afternoon gave out a statement in which he said he is vigorously opposed to the proposed referendum on the McDermott liquor license law.

The statement added that the governor has called a meeting of the liquor license commission to determine if any of the officers are involved in the movement for the referendum.

Removal from office is promised, if evidence is found establishing any such conduct.

FLOOD VICTIMS ARE SUFFERING

St. Louis, August 24.—Two thousand residents of Valley Park, Mo., made homeless Sunday when the 35 foot rise of the Meramec river flooded the town with 10 to 15 feet of water, today faced a food and drinking water shortage, which threatened to result disastrously.

Truck loads of food were rushed from St. Louis but this was consumed over night.

TRANSPORTS RODE TO DESTRUCTION

London, August 24.—From details of the attempted German landing in the Gulf of Riga, last Saturday, published in a newspaper here, it appears, says a dispatch from Petrograd, that three large transports filled with troops, were sunk by shore batteries after a two hour duel with vessels of the German squadron.

The German ships, the report says, were allowed to come close to land before a terrific artillery fire was opened by the Russians.

DRY FIGHT TO BEGIN SEPT. 15

Newark, O., August 24.—Leaders of the Ohio anti-saloon league met at Buckeye Lake today to form plans for the campaign this fall in behalf of state-wide prohibition. Members of the executive committee and county chairmen attended.

James A. White, Supt. of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League presided. It was learned, although no official announcement was made, that the campaign for state-wide prohibition would be formally opened as early as the middle of September.

ARKANSAS TOWNS SUFFER

Little Rock, Ark., August 24.—Little Rock, Hot Springs, Pine Bluff and a number of other Arkansas towns today were threatened with a gas famine as a result of floods causing a break in the main near Lewisville. The local supply of gas will be exhausted by tomorrow noon.

About 4,000 residents of Newport and vicinity crowded into hotels, the court house and homes there into which the water did not rise.

FIRST STEP TAKEN TO AID PLANTERS

Government Promises Thirty Million Dollar Cotton Loan.

WILL BE DEPOSITED IN SOUTH

Loans at Low Rates of Interest Will Enable Cotton Planters to Hold Back From the Market a Part of Their Crops, Thus Helping the Price—Secretary of Treasury McAdoo's Announcement.

Washington, Aug. 24.—The first step on the part of the federal government to relieve the southern cotton planters has been taken. Announcement was made at the treasury department that Secretary McAdoo will deposit $30,000,000 in gold in the federal reserve banks of Atlanta, Dallas and Richmond, if so large a sum is needed, in order to facilitate the financing of the cotton crop. This step was decided upon as a result of the action of the allies in putting cotton on the contraband list.

The deposits, according to the official announcement, will be "for the purpose of enabling those federal reserve banks to rediscount loans made on cotton secured by warehouse receipts by national banks and those state banks that are members of the federal reserve system."

No interest will be charged on these deposits. It is intended that the deposits shall make it possible for the member banks to charge low rates on loans to warehouse cotton, and indications are that the federal reserve board will fix extremely low rates on rediscounted paper of this character.

No disclosures have been made as to what other steps are under contemplation for the relief of the cotton situation.

The idea of government officials is that loans at low rates of interest will enable cotton planters to hold back from the market a part of their crops, thus helping the price.

NOT BROKE BUT LOUSY WITH COIN

New York, Aug. 24.—While no one of the local bankers claims to know the exact state of Germany's internal finances, it is known that Germany is practically living within itself. The last reports show that Germany's gold reserves amount to $989,000,000, while Austria has in reserve $291,000,000. The total gold of the world is $8,800,000,000, of which Germany and Austria have $1,280,000,000. Against these enormous reserves are the immense issues of war bonds and notes, but these concern nobody but the Germans. Since the beginning of the war Germany has been buying little, com-

TAKES STEP TO EXPEDITE PROBE

Only Establishment of New Facts in Connection With the Sinking of the Liner or a Disavowal of the Act by Berlin Can Avert a Break in Diplomatic Relations Between United States and Germany.

Washington, Aug. 24.—If after a full investigation of the facts the Washington administration is convinced that Germany committed a "deliberately unfriendly" act in the sinking of the steamship Arabic, diplomatic relations between the two governments will immediately be severed. The sinking of the White Star liner, as it now appears from unofficial reports, is regarded by Washington authorities as constituting an act of that character. Only the establishment of new facts in connection with the Arabic or a disavowal of Germany of the act of her submarine commander, can therefore avert a crisis in the relations between the United States and Germany. This was learned here on high authority. President Wilson will avail himself of every opportunity within the honor and dignity of the United States government to avoid a rupture with Germany, but he will go no further. There will be no backward step from the warning conveyed in the last note.

The information obtained here sweeps away every vestige of doubt as to the president's resolution to deal firmly and quickly with the situation, once he is convinced that American rights on the high seas have been deliberately violated by the German government. Until such information is at hand, though, Mr. Wilson and Secretary Lansing will reserve final judgment on the sinking of the Arabic. The hope of the president and his advisers is that this judgment will not long be deferred.

Steps have been taken to expedite matters. Instructions were sent to Ambassador Page at London to cable a summary of the affidavits obtained by him and a message also went forward to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin directing him to inquire of the Berlin foreign office if a report had been received from the commander of the German submarine in regard to the sinking of the Arabic. Also the opportunity will be had for Germany to make any statement in her own defense if she desires to do so.

If Germany desires to play for time she will have the means at her disposal for doing so, for President Wilson is determined that this government shall do nothing rashly.

The secretary to the president made the following statement: "With reference to the sinking of the Arabic, as soon as all the facts are established, our course of action will be determined."

SUPPLEMENTARY ANNOUNCEMENT

London, Aug. 24.—The British admiralty made the following announcement with regard to the sinking of the Arabic: "The Arabic was an unarmed passenger ship, outward bound for a neutral port; it was impossible for her to have been carrying contraband to this country, and she was sunk by a German submarine without warning and she neither attempted to attack the submarine nor to escape from it."

REFERENDUM ON M'DERMOTT ACT

Columbus, Aug. 24.—Fifteen thousand blank petitions for a referendum on the McDermott liquor license law were put in circulation for signatures. The form of the petition was approved by Secretary of State Hildebrandt. The petitions then were turned over by the legal firm of McGhee, Davis and Boulger to Judge Frank H. Kerr of Steubenville, who is to have charge of their circulation. Judge Kerr is a Republican. To secure a referendum on the McDermott law about 67,000 signatures must be filed before Sept. 23.

The Battle on the Sea

The Russian fleet, with the assistance of the British, has won a signal victory over the German fleet which was endeavoring to batter its way into the Gulf of Riga for the purpose of landing troops and furnishing a much needed base of supplies for the armies of the Kaiser in the campaign to capture or disable the army of Grand Duke Nicholas.

Emboldened by the marvelous victories of the land forces in Poland over the Russian troops, the Germans began the attack on the sea with every confidence of success.

That confidence proved to have been built on a false foundation and the complete triumph of the Czar's sea fighters is the most severe defeat the Kaiser's forces have sustained in the present war.

Not only is the loss in men and vessels a tremendous one, not only is the failure to establish a much needed base at Riga one which casts the somber shadow of probable defeat over the whole campaign against Russia, but the loss in prestige which the German armies must necessarily suffer at this time when the Balkan states are hesitating as to which side they will cast their lot with, is grave indeed.

The failure of the Russian land forces to give a better account of themselves on the field of battle has been a surprise to the critics, but not so great a surprise as has the signal victories of the Russian naval forces over the Germans, the Austrians and the Turks whenever and wherever they have clashed.

In the war with Japan the Russian navy proved wholly inefficient and disloyal, while the land troops rendered a better account of themselves. Thus far in this war the reverse has been the case.

The effect of Germany's marvelous victories in Poland and Russia have been eclipsed in one day's fighting on the sea in the Gulf of Riga, so far as prestige is concerned. The dearly bought victories of yesterday are forgotten in the reverses of today by those who secretly oppose the Teutons, but might remain neutral or become allies for selfish reasons.

Temperance and Business

Scarcely a day passes without furnishing its striking proof of the marked advance of temperance.

It is no longer the task of the preacher, the professional temperance worker nor yet of the startling agitator to promote the cause of temperance. Temperance has long since passed the theoretic stage, has left far behind it that time when it was pleasant to think that some day temperance might prevail. It has now reached the stage when it is an essential to practical business success, recognized and insisted upon by all men who make and who wish to make progress in the world of cold practical business which knows no theory that does not pay dividends in dollars and cents, either directly or indirectly.

Only a few days ago advertising men from widely separated sections of the nation met in Chicago.

"Truth" and its beneficial effect upon all legitimate business enterprises was the main topic of discussion. Quite naturally the range of the discussion embraced the cause of temperance.

Many of the speakers before the assembled "ad men" called attention to the well known and frequently mentioned fact that no longer do men engaged in legitimate business enterprises feel called upon to take a prospective customer to the bar rooms and treat him to intoxicating drinks, and every time that fact was mentioned the speaker drew a round of applause.

It was the unanimous expression of the speakers, that the old time custom was not only utterly useless as a foundation upon which to build permanent and profitable trade relations but, now days, such a practice would in almost every instance result in loss of trade.

A striking contrast with a quarter of a century ago, yet presenting a history of progress in perfect accord with that which records the progress of every true movement for good.

When practical business lays hold of a reform movement and adopts it as one of the requisites to remaining in business the ultimate triumph of that reform is not assured—it is a fact accomplished.

Temperance is no longer the talk of the impractical dreamer. It is the keystone of the arch upon which present day business is built.

Poetry For Today

MY ORIENT.

Spellbound beside the languid stream
Breathing the lotus balms,
I lie amid the ferns and dream
Of Oriental palms.

Where now, with most ungainly
strides,
The lazy heron feeds.
Methinks the sacred ibis hides
Among the river reeds.

The sunbeam's golden arrows fall
About me in the grass;
I hear the midges' bugle call
To combat, as they pass.

I see the emmets' pyramid
And watch their caravans,
Like camels on the march amid
Sahara's desert sands.

One horseman dashes o'er the plain
One stands beside the gate;
Al Hassan seeks the camel train,
While Mahmoud lies in wait.

An aged sheik, with wrinkled brows,
Sits in the evening sun,
And gathers dates from oaken boughs
As I perhaps have done.

The silent twilight hour draws near,
The crescent gleams in air,
And I, expectant, wait to hear
Muzzin's call to prayer.

If people got what they needed most a lot of the girls would wake up on Christmas morning and find safety razors in their stockings.

The girls are all great on culture. But so far I haven't seen any of them trying to drink their beer through a straw.

Men regard women as toys. But the ones wearing the brightest paint are not always the most popular.

The wedding day kiss is loaded with dynamite. But the tin wedding day kiss is loaded with cold mush.

Married women ought to make good jurors. They know what darned liars all the men are, and they are wise to all the alibis.

What if any is the difference between the old time tank mellerdrummer and the modern six reel movie fillum?

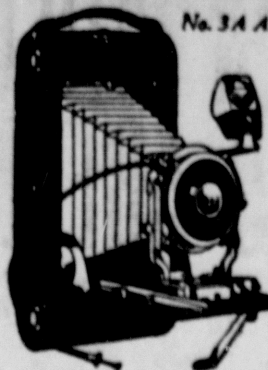

A man believes that the other fellow's girl may be faithful. But he knows that his girl is pure and irreproachable.

What is the use of fussing around and courting a girl for two years when you can cop her out or know where you stand the very first night you meet her?

Marriage is like the ten cent mystery tent at a street fair. It doesn't cost much to get in, but it costs a lot before you get out.

Appearances are deceitful. The man who thumps the bar the hardest when he tries to attract the barkeep's attention isn't always the fellow who is going to pay for the drinks.

Mother will gather up all her coffee checks, soap tags, trading stamps and grocery checks and will get a lot of Christmas presents with them. And father will come home and indignantly about mother spending all his good money for a lot of junk to give to people who will not appreciate it.

FLEETEST OF ALL DOGS.

Greyhounds Can Run as Fast as Carrier Pigeons Can Fly.

Comparatively few people realize of what remarkable speed dogs are capable. The wolf can run between fifty and sixty miles in one night, and the arctic fox can do quite as well, if not better. Nansen met one of these foxes on the ice at a point more than seventy miles northwest of the Sannikow territory, which is 480 miles from the Asiatic coast. Eskimo and Siberian dogs can travel forty-five miles on the ice in five hours, and there is one case on record in which a team of Eskimo dogs traveled six and one-half miles in twenty-eight minutes.

English setters and pointers hunt at the rate of eighteen to nineteen miles an hour, and they can maintain the speed for at least two hours. Foxhounds are extraordinarily swift, as is proved by the fact that a dog of this breed once beat a thoroughbred horse, covering four miles in six and one-half minutes. Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four footed creatures, and their speed may be regarded as equal to that of carrier pigeons. English greyhounds which are carefully selected and which are used for coursing are able to cover at full gallop a space between eighteen and twenty-three yards every second. It is said that a hare at its greatest speed never goes faster than at the rate of eighteen yards a second. These interesting statistics fully prove the right of the greyhounds to rank as the swiftest of the quadrupeds.—Springfield Republican.

VIOLENT DEATHS.

One Indication Is the Immediate Setting In of Rigor Mortis.

More than once the question of whether a person has died a natural or unnatural death turns upon something grasped in the hand. The object is held because the hand stiffens through what is known as rigor mortis (pronounced rye-gor mortis), a stiffening of the muscles of the body after death.

Now, if a person dies naturally this stiffening of the muscles does not take place, as a rule, until two hours or more after death, and then it comes on slowly. In cases of violent death, however, rigor mortis sets in immediately. It is through this that many a murderer has been caught and many a so called accidental death proved to be intentional.

One of the most remarkable effects of this sudden stiffening after death appears in the account of the charge of Bulgciaya. Captain Nolan while riding at the head of the noble six hundred had his chest torn open by a Russian shell.

The arm he was waving in the air at the moment remained high uplifted, and he retained his seat on his horse, which wheeled around and passed some distance through the ranks before the rider fell.

Portions of the hair and clothing of a murderer have often been found in the hands of the victim, while bodies recovered from the water have brought with them clutched in their fingers weeds and mud from the bottom, showing that death occurred in the water and not on land.—London Answers.

Australia's Bottle Tree.

The bottle tree is a native of Australia. It has a trunk of extraordinary expansion and disproportionateness which is greater when the ground is rocky. In fertile soil the trunk forms a uniform cylindrical column, from whose summit the branches issue as from the neck of a bottle, hence the name.

HOW CAN A WOMAN Bank $2.00 a Week?

Some can't do it. Most can. It depends upon the woman. Make up your account of what you spend weekly. Then cut to the bone your expenditures. Be extravagant only in saving money. Some women will say "I can't do without this"—"I can't do without that." Other women will say "I WILL do without this"—"I WILL do without that."

LARGE BARN WITH CONTENTS AND SILO ARE DESTROYED

Mysterious Fire on Richard Sollars' Farm, Near City, Causes Loss of Several Thousand Dollars—Towing Car, Machinery, Harness, Grain and Hay Consumed With Big Barn and Silo—Was in Path of Recent Tornado.

The large barn and silo on the Richard Sollars farm, one mile east of this city on the Devalon road were completely destroyed by fire between eight and nine o'clock Monday night, entailing a loss of several thousand dollars with only $1000 insurance on the buildings and contents. The fire was of mysterious origin.

The fire started in the hay loft and when first noticed had burst from the roof and the building and contents were doomed. Mr. and Mrs. Sollars had just returned from this city about 30 minutes before the fire and placed their touring car in the barn. They had been asleep but a few minutes when they were aroused and the barn was a mass of flames.

Neighbors rushed in to render what assistance they could, and a number of people from this city hurried out, but the flames had gained

such a foothold that it was impossible to do anything but endeavor to keep the flames from spreading.

In the barn was a large amount of new hay, oats, harness, machinery, the Sollars' touring car, carriage and buggy. All were completely destroyed. The flames communicated to the silo adjoining the barn and it was soon doomed. When it became apparent that the silo could not be saved, the guy wires were cut and the structure allowed to fall into the burning barn to prevent it falling outward and setting fire to a large straw pile nearby. The wind also carried the flames from the straw pile and it was saved.

It is not known how the fire originated, whether it was due to spontaneous combustion, sparks from a passing B. & O. freight—the tracks being about 300 feet distant, or was kindled by a "firebug." Many believe the blaze to be of incendiary origin.

The loss is a heavy one to Mr. Sollars, who suffered severely from the recent tornado which swept this city and surrounding territory. At that time part of his house was torn away, necessitating the rebuilding of a portion of it, and other buildings were damaged. The barn destroyed was a large one and one of the most substantial in the county.

Mr. Sollars will rebuild immediately, it is understood.

BADLY HURT IN TUMBLE DOWN ELEVATOR SHAFT

Mr. Louis Hall had a narrow escape from death in the Sloane Hotel at Sandusky the first of this week, sustaining a broken arm and other painful injuries in a very unusual accident.

Mr. Hall, who travels in the interest of the F. M. Hoyt Co., of Manchester, N. H., was preparing to start on his fall trip. Crossing the hotel lobby to the elevator, he was reading a letter and did not notice that the elevator boy had stepped away and left the door open to the empty elevator shaft. Thinking he was stepping into the elevator Mr. Hall plunged twelve feet down the hollow shaft to the basement.

His right arm was broken at the wrist; his hip and leg badly bruised and numerous other bruises on his body, but the wonder is that he was not instantly killed. He reached this city Monday night and was at once taken to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Hall, on Dayton avenue.

It will probably be some time before Mr. Hall will be able to go on his trip.

RECOVERING FROM FRIGHTFUL INJURIES

Ruth, the little seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Campbell, residing on the Lewis pike is recovering from injuries sustained in a frightful accident last week, when one-half of her hair was caught on the shafting of a power washing machine and torn from her head, at the same time cutting her right index finger off.

The little girl was in the wash house with her mother and in bending over one of the braids of hair touched the wet shafting which immediately began winding up the braid. The child in struggling to free herself from the shafting got her finger between the braid and the shafting and the finger was severed at the first joint. Before the engine could be stopped the shafting had completed its work of tearing the entire braid—composed of one-half of the child's hair, out by the root, causing frightful agony and leaving half of the head as if it had been shaved.

Fortunately the scalp was not torn and the physicians believe that the scalp will throw out another growth of hair so that within a few years the one side will have as luxurious growth of hair as the other.

NEW POSTAL ORDER EFFECTIVE SEPT. 1ST

The following order issued by the Postmaster General regarding the insurance of fourth-class matter instead of registering, becomes effective Wednesday of next week.

"Fourth-class mail shall not be registered, but may be insured against loss in an amount equivalent to its actual value, but not to exceed $5.00 in any one case, on payment of a fee of three cents; not to exceed $25.00 on payment of a fee of five cents; not to exceed $50.00 on payment of a fee of ten cents; or not to exceed $100.00 on payment of a fee of twenty-five cents, in addition to the postage, both to be prepaid by stamps affixed; but indemnity will not be allowed in case of loss of such mail addressed to the Philippine Islands, unless the loss occurred in the postal service of the United States."

CONCRETE BASE IS NEARING COMPLETION

The Andrews Asphalt Company will, within the next day or two, complete the concrete base on the East Court street improvement, and the work of laying the asphalt—the first to be laid in this city, will be taken up immediately, and with favorable weather the street will be thrown open to traffic Saturday evening or Sunday.

Unlike brick streets it does not require sometime for the paving to become "set."

A NEW IDEA IN THEATRICALS.

The opening bill of the Al Flatco Musical Comedy Company which comes to the Empire Thursday, Friday and Saturday is "Wedded Bliss" an uproariously funny musical farce in two acts. In addition to a large company of principals Mr. Flatco carried a beauty chorus. The prices will be ten, twenty and thirty cents for the best seats.

JACKSON HIGHWAY BRANCH MAY COME TO WASHINGTON

Opportunity Afforded Ohio Cities to Be Located Upon Part of Jackson Highway Leading to Cleveland, and Hustling Will Be Necessary to Bring Famous Thoroughfare This Way.

It has become known that there is splendid opportunity for cities in Ohio between Cleveland, Columbus and Aberdeen on the Ohio river to be on the route of a great national north-and-south highway, 1600 miles in length and penetrating sections of unusual scenic beauty and historic interest.

An eastern division of the Jackson highway is being promoted and the route considered in a tentative way north of Maysville, Ky., may touch such cities as Hillsboro, Washington Court House or Chillicothe, Columbus, Delaware, Mt. Gilead, Gallon, Mansfield, New London, Wellington, Oberlin, Elyria, Circleville, Wooster, Akron, Medina. Of course, all of these cities cannot be touched and if some are named on a route, others of necessity must be left off it.

To consider plans for the general meeting in Nashville, at which hundreds of Jackson Highway enthusiasts are expected to be present, vice presidents will meet in Louisville at 2 p. m. on September 2. Reports of accomplishments in individual states thus far will likely be heard at that meeting.

A Jackson Highway was conceived some five years ago by the Daughters of 1812, a Southern patriotic society. Birmingham, Ala. clubwomen first proposed the highway. It was proposed to make it a great north-and-south road between New Orleans and Chicago, touching in the south scenes of the civil and military life of Andrew Jackson and following in a general way south of Nashville the path of General Jackson's march against the British and Indians in New Orleans. The highway was to be a monument to this former president and military hero.

As originally planned cities to be touched between New Orleans and Chicago, were among others Pensacola, Fla., Montgomery, Ala., Birmingham, Ala., Nashville, Tenn., Louisville, Ky., and Indianapolis, Ind.

Cities in Kentucky between Louisville and Maysville became much interested a short time ago and an eastern division of the Jackson highway from Louisville by way of Shelbyville, Frankfort, Lexington, Paris, and Carlisle was proposed with Cleveland, Ohio as a northern terminal. This route in Kentucky would follow the fine old Kentucky State pike for 142 miles.

Kentucky advocates of the eastern division will form an organization in Frankfort, August 26, and are anxious to enlist Ohio co-operation.

TRICKING SUBMARINES.

Rules by Which Vessels May Escape Their Torpedo Attacks.

It is the surprise attack which in nearly every case enables a submarine to torpedo a hostile ship. There are several maneuvers by means of which a ship can trick a submarine. Several vessels have diverted torpedoes by swinging round their stern until it points in the direction of the undersea craft. In this way the wash of the propellers has deflected the torpedo from its course and it has sped harmlessly past its mark. Another successful ruse is to stoke up the furnaces of a ship chased by a submarine, and thick, black smoke belches from its funnels and envelops the vessel in a protective shroud. In this way the submarine gunners are confused and cannot perceive the correct direction in which to send their torpedo.

A speedy ship which follows an erratic, zigzag course presents a poor mark to a submarine. When a torpedo is dispatched against a fast traveling vessel it is directed to a point just ahead of its mark, and the craft literally runs into the death dealing device. This obviously cannot happen, however, if a ship is swinging rapidly from side to side and alternately pointing the narrow expanse of its bows or stern to the undersea marksman.

A submarine seldom attacks a vessel if it is not alone, for it can only attack one at a time, and while it is launching a torpedo at its first mark the second vessel has an excellent opportunity of ramming the submarine, which can be located by its telltale periscope.—Pearson's Weekly.

THE ENTRANCE HALL.

Make It Suit Not Visitors, but the Occupants of the Home.

Is anything new to be said about the entrance hall? The smallest room in most houses, it is usually given in the plans an amount of attention that might seem out of all proportion to the rest of the house. And yet the ordinary entrance, whether it be a mere vestibule, a spacious hall of the colonial style or, as in our present day fashions, a part of the living room set off by an archway, is quite unsatisfactory. It is unsatisfactory for this reason—that the entrance way is designed and decorated from the standpoint of the impression it makes on visitors, whereas the impression we should seek is not that made upon guests, but upon ourselves, the occupants of the house.

Too often we give the entrance a severe treatment that impresses the student of beauty or that amazes the less discriminating visitor by the other extreme of lavish display. But how does either of these two types of entrance affect those who come into the house many times every day, the good man and his good wife and their children? Is it a room that by its suggestion of rest and repose tempts one after a hard day's work at the office to drop into the first easy chair that comes along, or does it irritate the nerves and keep one going, restless and uneasy, wandering from the entrance to the living room and from the living room to the study and thence to the attic by way of the basement?—Good Health.

Suppressing Swearing.

Profane as well as legal notes have been the subject of many parliamentary measures in England. No fewer than five separate bills having the prevention of swearing for their object were presented during the reign of James I., but it was not until 1623 that an enactment was finally carried defining and controlling the offense. In 1635 a public department was established to collect the fines enforced by this law. The officials of this department, of whom one was appointed in every parish, were allowed 2s. 6d. in the pound on the money thus collected, and the balance was paid over to the bishop for the benefit of the deserving poor. These penalties ceased to be enforced after the restoration, but were revived by a statute of William and Mary and still further increased under George II.

Stereoscopic Surveying.

There is in use a stereoscopic method of photographing surveying. Photographs are taken at two points with a surveying camera, the plates being exposed in the vertical plane passing through both stations. The developed plates, or positives from them, being then placed in a stereoscopic measuring machine that combines the pictures, a brief calculation gives the exact position of any desired point. The effective range of the instrument is put at about five miles, and the method is said to be of particular advantage in mapping large areas of mountainous country.

The Indispensable Boy.

In Social Circles

Mrs. George Jackson and daughter Miss Emma, have been the inspiration of many delightful social affairs, but none more pleasurable nor set apart by distinctive beauty of appointment than the luncheon, given in compliment to Mrs. Michael Salathiel Creamer, of Los Angeles, Cal., Tuesday.

The table, laid with twelve covers, was exquisite in Irish crochet luncheon set and a white and yellow color scheme carried out to perfection in gold banded china, an immense brass bowl of nasturtiums, their lovely tints of orange and yellow reflected back from the table mirror in the center, and dainty place cards.

An elaborate luncheon menu of five courses, embracing summer delicacies new and tempting, was served.

The spacious rooms throughout the home were made doubly attractive with a profusion of marigolds, blackeyed daisies and zenias, gracefully arranged in brass vases and wicker baskets.

The guests lingered long after the luncheon, thoroughly enjoying the visit with Mrs. Creamer, whose years of absence in the west, have but increased the charm of her vivacious personality.

Mrs. Fred Sprenger, of Marion, Ill., the guest of Mrs. Frank S. Jackson, and Miss Ruth Van Kirk of Yellow Springs, Miss Dorothy Fullerton's guest, were among the guests.

Paul and Robert Craig and their guests, Erwin Bailey of Detroit, and Ralph Mountain of Columbus, go to Sweet Briar Ridge Wednesday for a ten days' outing. Logan Herbert comes down from Columbus the last of the week to join them.

For four years this crowd has held an annual camp and the conveniences of the cottage at the Ridge will make it doubly enjoyable this year.

A number of camp affairs are planned and it is a foregone conclusion that there will be "something doing" at the Ridge during the boys' stay.

Miss Rose McLean entertained at a pretty little dinner Monday evening Miss Jean Howat and guest Miss Katharine Kelley, of Xenia, Messrs Edwards Hopkins and James Ballard.

CORN VERY LATE FEAR OF FROST

Many farmers are now fearful lest their corn crop be nipped by the early frosts, but the average farmer who planted his corn at the usual time and did not have to plant the corn a second time in order to obtain a stand, is resting easy.

It is the man who failed to get his corn planted in reasonable time, or was forced to plant over again, who is anxious about the corn maturing before frost falls.

The continued wet weather has retarded the development of the corn to some extent, and as a result corn cutting will be later than usual.

MRS. CULBERSON ANSWERS SUMMONS

It was with the deepest regret that a large circle of relatives and friends in this city and county learned of the death of Mrs. Harve Culbertson, of East Market street, at the Fayette Hospital, on Monday evening at ten o'clock.

Mrs. Culbertson had recently undergone the second operation as the last hope of recovering her health. In the prime of her womanhood, devoted to her family and a woman of admirable qualities, Mrs. Culbertson's death is doubly sad.

She is survived by her husband and four children.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at ten a. m. in the Church of Christ, of which she was an active member. Burial in the Washington cemetery.

Robert Craig went to Columbus Monday afternoon to meet Erwin Bailey, who came down from Detroit, Mich., to be his guest.

Dr. Willard Burke of New York visited Mr. Jos. N. Willson and family the first of the week. He is now the guest of Mt. Sterling relatives, returning to the east Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Larrimer and Mr. Luther Dickey, of Bloomingburg, leave Wednesday for a tour of the west, and will return sometime in October.

Mr. and Mrs. Werter Shoop have returned from a month's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Carse, in Orrilia, Canada, and trip on the lakes. Mr. and Mrs. Leck Shoop and daughter Lucy, motored with them down from Columbus.

Mrs. C. H. Estey of Columbus, who with her husband, was taking a trip in northern Ohio, accompanied her brother, Mr. Louis Hall, from Sandusky Monday night and will remain for a couple of days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Hall.

The Gossard party writes that they are enroute home, starting from Idaho Falls on Sunday. They had a wonderful trip through the Yellow Stone Park and have taken in every place of interest enroute. With no bad luck they ought to be home in a couple of weeks.

Miss Grace Pavey, of Columbus, who has been visiting Mrs. Val McCoy, left Tuesday for Sabina, where she will spend the week. Washington friends will be interested to learn that Miss Pavey expects to enter upon a course in trained nursing at the Mt. Carmel hospital the middle of September.

The Tail of a Fish.

A fish's tail is its wings. Owing to the machinery of muscle set along its spine and to its cleaving form a trout or salmon can dart through the water at a tremendous pace, though its rapid flights, unlike the bird's, are not long ones. It is soon tired. The water is not so friendly to flight as the air. The stroke of the fish's tail is one of great power, and by means of it and the writhing, snakelike flexion of the body a high speed is reached. The strength behind this speed is shown in the way a fish or sea mammal out of the water will raise its tail and strike the ground or boat.

'NOTHER GERMAN VICTORY

Ossowiec, Important Russian
Garrison, Lost to the Czar.

RUSS CONTINUE TO FALL BACK

Germans Aiming to Partially Envelop
Brest-Litovsk, the Pivotal Point in Present Line of Russian Defense,
Before Commencing a General Assault—Seventh Important Fort in German Hands.

London, Aug. 24.—Ossowiec, another important Russian fortification, fell to the Germans, while elsewhere along the entire front south of Kovno the Russians continued to fall back.

At Brest-Litovsk, the pivotal point
in the present line of Russian defense,
there has been no advance made, according to the admission of the German authorities. Little hope, however,
can be attached to this fact, because it has been apparent for the past two or three days that the Germans at this point are aiming to partially envelop the stronghold before commencing a general assault.

In pursuance of either one of the plans of strategy the forces under
Prince Leopold of Bavaria and Field
Marshal Von Mackensen continued to hammer away at the Russian line with unabated fury. Both Prince Leopold,
to the north of Brest-Litovsk, and Von Mackensen, at the south, continued to advance in the face of apparently very determined resistance offered by the Russians.

The fall of Ossowiec is not regarded by the military observers here as an alarming event, or as anything more,
in fact, than an incident in the enforced retreat of the Russian armies.
It is the seventh great fort to fall
since the capture of Warsaw.

Of all the Russian fortresses which have been captured by the Austrians and Germans in such rapid succession
during the last three weeks, Ossowiec made the longest resistance. During the winter and spring several futile attacks were made by the Germans on this side position. Even after the Germans had swept through Poland and the Baltic provinces, Ossowiec still held out.

Effect of Riga Battle.

Military observers here say that the battle in the Gulf of Riga, in which the German battle cruiser Moltke, three cruisers and seven torpedo boats were destroyed, will seriously hinder the German advance. With Riga still in Russian hands, Von Hindenburg's further advance toward Petrograd is menaced. Von Hindenburg had succeeded in pushing far beyond Riga to Jacobstadt, on the river Dvina.

Some of the details regarding the fall of Novogeorgievsk may now be recounted. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon of Aug. 18 General Von Beseler, commanding the German forces, gave the Russian general one hour in which to surrender the fort. The Kaiser addressed the army in a ringing voice.
He complimented them on the victory
and declared "the God of hosts has been with us and with his aid we hope
to continue to conquer."

After a brief conference with the generals who accompanied him, the Kaiser proceeded into Novogeorgievsk.
Fires started by the Russians were burning everywhere. Explosions of ammunition which had been stored at various points were constant. Dead Russian soldiers were lying at every step in the midst of devastation
which was complete.

ITALIAN CAPTURE

Rome, Aug. 24.—The latest official reports from the front announce progress in the movement of Italian troops against the Austrian stronghold of Tolmino, on the upper Isonzo, and the capture of some strong Austrian trenches on the Carso Nocturnal.

What is Tuberculosis?

TUBERCULOSIS or consumption, known also as "phthisis," is a treacherous disease caused by the growth in the body of millions of little rod-shaped germs called "tubercle bacilli," because as they multiply they produce small lumps or "tubercles." The germs are really tiny plant-like parasites, so small that they must be magnified hundreds of times under a powerful microscope before one can see them at all.

Being a parasite, the germ of tuberculosis, like the mistletoe or fungus growth, must live by taking life from something else, and on this account it lives in the body of human beings or animals better than anywhere else, in the eye, the skin, the knee or the spine, and most frequently in the lungs, and the other organs of breathing.

Outside of the body, the germs of tuberculosis may be easily killed, if they are exposed to direct sunlight for a few hours. Moist heat at 145 degree F., boiling water, or strong alkaline soaps, washing soda and similar household cleansing solutions will also kill them. If undisturbed, the germs of tuberculosis may live outside of the body in warm, moist, dark places, such as corners of rooms and hallways, for months or even years.

Because of the careless habits of people who have consumption and others, the germs of the disease are everywhere. Every time a person who has the bacilli in his sputum spits on the floor, sidewalk or in any other exposed place, the germs by the billions may become dry, and when stirred up by a broom or current of air may be inhaled by the chance passer. A speck of dust, such as one sees in the sunlight, may be the resting place of hundreds of these tiny germs. On this account nearly everybody at some time or other breathes in the living germs of tuberculosis.

Why then doesn't everyone die of tuberculosis? Because the germs of tuberculosis in the body cannot grow, unless they find certain tissues that are weak, flabby, or, as it is better called, "non-resistant." Everyone has a certain normal resistance to tuberculosis. If this resistance is lowered for any reason, the germs, which are almost always present in the body, will quickly find some tissue on which they can grow, and thus the disease is started. It takes more than the presence of the germ in the body to cause tuberculosis.
It needs also a lowered vitality that will give the germ a chance to grow. It is like the seed and the soil. The scaly parasite that ruins a rosebush frequently comes from a poorly nourished soil.
The tubercle bacillus is the seed; the body is the soil. If the soil is allowed to lose its normal and natural fertility, the seed will produce disease. If the soil is kept up to its full strength, this parasite seed cannot grow, and no tuberculosis will develop.

Once the germs begin to grow in the body, they produce injury to it in two ways:

(1) They destroy tissues. The destruction in the lung, for example, may amount to a very small spot, or it may be a large cavity, and not infrequently an entire lung. The sooner the disease is discovered, the smaller will be the amount of tissue destroyed, as a general rule.

(2) The growing germ, while it destroys the body tissues upon which it lives, also produces certain poisons or toxins, which, in turn, cause most of the symptoms of the disease. Thus, while the germs may be active in the lungs, the poison which they throw off goes through the entire system.

The commonest early symptoms of consumption are:

(1) Persistent cough or cold lasting a month or longer; (2)
Loss of weight and appetite; (3) Run down feeling; (4) Afternoon temperature; (5) Night sweats; and (6) Spitting of blood or streaks of blood in sputum.

The presence of any of these symptoms should lead one to consult a physician at once. Tuberculosis can be cured if it is discovered in time. It costs little to be examined and cured. It is very expensive to delay and die.

[NOTE—This is the First of a Series of Five Articles Prepared by The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, New York City.]

TO SELECT SPEAKERS
FOR GOVERNOR'S DAY

Chairmen of Rival State Committees Receive Invitations.

Columbus, Aug. 24. — Chairmen of the state committees of the various political parties were invited by Secretary Dunlap of the board of agriculture to furnish a speaker for Governor's day, Sept. 2, at the state fair, when Governor Willis is to speak.
Through the chairman invitations were issued to leaders and voters of their parties to attend the fair on Governor's day.

The Republican organization has invited all the county executive and central committeemen in eighty-eight counties to a reception the morning of Sept. 2 at state headquarters, to be followed by luncheon at the Virginia Hotel. Senator Warren G. Harding has been invited and also a number of Republicans considered as prospective candidates for president, United States senator or governor, including ex-Governor Myron T. Herrick, ex-Senator Theodore E. Burton, Governor Willis, ex-Senator Charles Dick, Harry M. Daugherty and ex-Congressman Ralph D. Cole.

FAVORS POOLS FOR COMMERCE

Los Angeles, Aug. 24. — Many witnesses who appeared here before the United States trade commission declared they favored pools or combinations for the benefit of foreign commerce. They were divided, however, upon the scope and application of such combinations. They also favored amending the national anti-trust law to permit such trade agreements. The witnesses agreed that trade expansion depended primarily upon extension of credits and adequate shipping facilities.

Stoddard Jess, a banker, advocatd an amendment to the anti-trust laws permitting combinations of men engaged in foreign trade to meet like combinations organized in other countries.

MORE NOTORIETY COMES TO HELEN

New York, Aug. 24.—Helen Woodruff Smith of Stamford, Conn., defendant in the recent "Ruzzie Lamb" breach of promise suit and former wife of Homer S. Cummings, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, is lying dangerously ill in Port Chester, as the result of an automobile accident at Rye, N. Y. Raoul Lemat, the aviator, who was in the car, was also seriously injured.

WILL ATTACK GERRYMANDER

Columbus, Aug. 24.—Chairman Finley of the Democratic state executive committee stated that he expected to file the petition for a referendum on the Sprague congressional gerrymander law by the end of this week. He said the referendum was assured. The petition must be filed before Sept. 2.

WILSON'S GIFTS TO BRAVE MEN

New York, Aug. 24. — Captain William T. Aspinall of the Booth liner Gregory received through the British consul in this city a gold watch with gold cable chain and gold compass from the president of the United States. The watch is appropriately engraved and has on the outside the arms of the American government.

The watch and chain were presented to Captain Aspinall in recognition of the services of himself and of several members of his crew in rescuing five sailors of the wrecked steamship Oklahoma on Jan. 4, 1914. Second Officer John S. Williams and Third Officer F. D. Roberts, who jumped into a raging sea and rescued the sailors, have since been killed in France in the English trenches. Just before they went to the front they received binoculars from the president.

Newspaper Advertising

Goes direct to the people and the people constitute the buying public. Newspaper advertising not only talks but it emphasizes; it has the undivided attention of the reader and covers a field no salesman can hope to reach. There are many styles in newspaper advertising and the small announcement, which costs only five cents, is just as effective in its way as the larger one, which costs proportionately more. The benefits to be derived can not be measured by the size of the ad, for the very good reason that the small, inexpensive announcement invariably proves effective. Newspaper advertising costs from five cents up to any price the advertiser desires to pay.

Bowser Runs Out Nights

But Mrs. Bowser Puts a Stop to It.

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1931, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

It so happened that four men, all known to each other and to Mr. Bowser, gathered in his office the other afternoon. After some general talk one of the men said:

"It was funny about Bebee, was it not?"

"What was it?" was asked.

"Why, he started for his lodge the other night, and Mrs. Bebee followed him, and he had to go back home with her."

"Humph! I'd like to see my wife play such a trick on me!"

"So would I."

"And I."

"It seems that Bebee has been a booby ever since his marriage—that is, he has never gone out of an evening without telling his wife where he was going and about what time he would be home. Therefore when he broke over the rule the other evening she thought something awful was about to happen."

"I began married life," said Saunders, "by going and coming as I pleased. For the first two or three evenings my wife wanted to know all about it, but after that I got her into training. I simply get ready and go when I want to go, and she asks no questions. Sometimes I get home at 10 o'clock and sometimes not until 1 in the morning, but no questions are asked and no row raised. She quickly came to realize, as every wife ought to, that the fewer questions she asked the fewer lies I would tell her. If I had been in Bebee's place I should have gently lifted her over the first fence and gone along to my lodge."

When the quartet had gone Mr. Bowser had some thinking to do and soon exclaimed to himself:

"By thunder, I am like Bebee! I have never yet gone out of a night without Mrs. Bowser asking a dozen questions. I can't go out to play a game of bowls or dominoes or to smoke a cigar with an old crony but I is:

"Mr. Bowser, are you going out this evening?"

"I thought I would."

"Where are you going?"

"To the bowling club, I guess."

"Where is it?"

"Oh, about four blocks away."

"But what is the street and number?"

"It is 224 Franklin street."

"And you are going to go straight there?"

"Yes."

"And come home about 10 o'clock?"

"And then she looks at me as if she would read my guilty heart, and I can see great chunks of doubt in either eye. If I go out I can't bowl for shucks, and if I stay home I am mad all the evening. Yes, I have been as much a booby as Bebee is, but by the great horn spoon I will be a booby no longer! If I cannot run myself Mrs. Bowser shall not run me!"

Several times during the day Mr. Bowser thought of the situation, and each time he did he brought his fist down on his knee and very nearly shouted:

"No, by John, she shall not!"

When Mr. Bowser came home to dinner that evening he was rather bland and smiling, but at the same time he had a way about him that meant to show her he was boss of the roost. She was his wife, but there was a gulf between them. Of course Mrs. Bowser was quick to notice the change, but she made no remarks calculated to draw him out. Mr. Bowser finished his dinner a quarter of an hour sooner than usual and shoved back and went upstairs. Later on Mrs. Bowser found him walking to and fro in the sitting room, with hat and cane in hand and a cigar in his mouth. He was apparently waiting to question or be questioned, but both looked at each other and had nothing to say except to themselves.

"I wonder if he is going out," mentally queried Mrs. Bowser of herself.

"She must know that I am going out," said Mr. Bowser. "Why doesn't she ask me where I am going?"

Something was said about stopping at the grocery to order some things forgotten by the cook, and then Bowser walks right outdoors and up the street. Mrs. Bowser opened the door wide enough to peek out and see which way he went, and as she closed it she said:

"Mr. Bowser has taken a new tack. I see. Very well. I'll make him sick of it in less than a week or my name is not Sarah Bowser!"

To give the new experiment a thorough trial Mr. Bowser remained at the club until 1 o'clock in the morning. He surely expected a row when he reached home, but there was no row. Mrs. Bowser had left a light for him and had been asleep for two or three hours. She did not awaken when he came upstairs, though he purposely made considerable of a racket.

Nothing about the matter was said at breakfast, and he went away with a feeling that somehow or other he had not gained such a great victory after all. When he came home at night he was still carrying that gulf between them. At the dinner table she remarked that it had been a fine day, and he agreed with her.

Then he remarked that pork chops had gone up 2 cents more a pound, and she replied that it was perfectly awful.

He might have noticed that she was hurrying her dinner a bit, but he didn't. He was therefore a little surprised when she asked to be excused and left the table. It was his turn to follow upstairs. He didn't find her on the lounge with a headache as he had expected to. As he stood looking around the room she came downstairs fully dressed, and after telling him to charge the cook to see that the kitchen door was locked when she went to bed she passed down the hall and the front door closed after her. She was going out, but where?

"By Jinks, but that's cool!" said Mr. Bowser as he looked after her. "Mebbe she's heard the story of Bebee the booby and is going to try my little game herself."

After about ten minutes he left the house for the Domino club, but after playing three or four games and losing every one, owing to the abstraction of mind, he started for home. He hoped to find Mrs. Bowser there. Vain hope. She had not returned. The cook was just going up to bed, and Mr. Bowser asked:

"Did you know that Mrs. Bowser was going out this evening?"

"No more than I knew you were going out last night," was the rather impudent answer.

"Is there a church festival?" he continued.

"Not that I know of, sir."

"Is any one in the neighborhood sick that they would want her services?"

"I haven't heard of any one."

"It's darned funny," mused Bowser as the girl passed on. "Walked right out the house without a word. I can't understand it."

From 10 o'clock till midnight Mr. Bowser smoked four cigars. He also walked to and fro. He also talked to the cat. He also tried to read. It was no use. He kept wondering and wondering and wondering. When the clock struck 12 he said:

"I'll be hanged if I'll wait any longer for her. I'll go to bed. This thing will have to be explained in the morning!"

It might have been an hour after midnight, or it might have been an hour before daybreak that Mrs. Bowser came home. Mr. Bowser never knew. He was asleep and dreaming that Mrs. Bowser had run away with a fruit peddler. As for the explanation, none was asked for. She hadn't asked for one, and how could he? It was what they called strained relations between the two at breakfast, but it ended there.

Dinner time, and Mr. Bowser came again. At the office during the day he hadn't grinned nor chuckled a single time, but instead had carried a very sober face. At home the cook had started to open the conversation with Mrs. Bowser, but all the reply she received was a wink or something that might be taken for a wink. The cook knew that a wink signifies "It is all right, you know," and she was content.

There wasn't much conversation at the dinner table. There was too much hurry for that.

Both finished their meal at the same time.

Both went upstairs at the same time. Both were ready to go out at the same time, but Mrs. Bowser drew back and waited for five minutes. Mr. Bowser walked across the street and took shelter behind a shade tree. Mrs. Bowser passed out of the back door and the alley gate, and Mr. Bowser therefore missed seeing her. After waiting for awhile he started out for a walk, and at the end of five blocks he came face to face with her. She was strolling and enjoying the evening air.

Both stopped, but not a word passed for a full minute. Then they started for home, arm in arm. When they had reached the privacy of the sitting room Mr. Bowser turned on her and said:

"Mrs. Bowser, I have the right to ask where you go at night?"

"So have I," she retorted.

"Must a husband explain every little thing to his wife?"

"Must a wife explain every little thing to her husband?"

And they looked at each other and began to grin, and in a few seconds the grin was a laugh.

"I shall be home tomorrow night," said Mr. Bowser.

"So shall I," replied Mrs. Bowser.

And if the reader calls any evening hour up to 11 o'clock he will find them both there and seemingly very content.

THE SECRETARY BIRD.

It Kicks Like a Mule and Can Swallow a Snake Whole.

The rarest and most valuable birds in the New York zoological garden are the strange pair of secretary birds quartered in the ostrich house. "Secretary birds" they are called because of the crest of long dark plumes that rises from the back of their heads, giving them the appearance of a clerk with a bunch of quill feathers behind his ear. It's an aristocratic name, but the thing that makes the secretary bird valuable is not his looks. The natives of South Africa love him because he can kick like a mule.

Toss into his cage a snake, no matter how vicious, and the fight begins immediately. The bird cautiously approaches the snake with wings wide-spread to escape the sudden lunges by flight if necessary. Once, twice, three times perhaps the snake lunges. The bird darts back, waiting his chance. At last it comes, and one of those long, hard legs shoots out like the hoof of a mule, landing squarely on the snake's head. It reels and falls back stunned to be knocked out completely by a second blow. And then its victor proceeds to swallow it whole.

In South Africa the birds are regarded as a great protection. They are affectionate mates and always travel together. When pursued they spread their wings and make off over the ground with the speed of a running horse.—Every Week.

INDIAN SUMMER.

The Term May Have Had Its Origin in the Far East.

The origin of the term "Indian summer," like that of the word "blizzard," has been the subject of much research. It has been traced back only as far as the latter part of the eighteenth century, and it did not become common until after the first decade of the nineteenth.

Many explanations of the name have been offered, all of which assume the term "Indian" used in this connection refers to the American Indians.

A recent note in the Monthly Weather Review calls attention to a total different use of this term, in which the reference is not to the American Indians, but to East India.

Under the British board of trade regulations one of the load lines marked on ships bears the initials "I. S.," the being the maximum depth to which vessels can be loaded for voyages during the "Indian summer"—i. e., the season in the Indian seas.

How long has the term "Indian summer" been used in this sense? It is not recorded in any dictionary nor apparently in any work on meteorology. Is it possible that our autumnal Indian summer was so named by sailors or travelers who saw in it a resemblance to the fine weather attending the northeast monsoon in India?

A Candid Caller.

A small boy had been coerced into making an afternoon call with his mother. He had rebelled vehemently over the calling business, saying: "Aw, what you want to make me go there for? She hasn't any boys, and it would be any fun."

But, dressed in his best suit, he had put on his company manners and behaved very well indeed, and when their hostess served refreshments he began to feel glad that he had come.

When it came time to leave he held out his hand, saying gallantly:

"Goodby; I've had a good time"—and then, right while his young mother was beaming her approval, he added honestly—"a whole lot better time than I expected to have."—Indianapolis News

SUBMARINE COMMANDER HAS NOT YET REPORTED TO ADMIRALTY

Communication Indicates Kaiser Anxious to Avoid Break With America, and Believes Facts May Show No Just Cause for Drastic Action on Part of United States—German Ambassador Says if Any Americans Killed It Was Contrary to Intentions of German Government, Which Had No Intention of Sinking Peaceful Merchant Ship in Flagrant Manner.

By Associated Press.
Washington, August 24.—Germany, through her Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, today asked the United States not to take a final stand on the sinking of the White Star liner Arabic until all the facts are known.
It was the first word from Germany since the disaster. The Ambassador telegraphed the State Department today saying he made the request at the instruction of his government and added that the German admiralty had not yet been able to get a report.
Count Bernstorff telegraphed from the summer embassy at Cedarhurst, L. I., asked that no steps be taken until all the facts had been ascertained and the German government has had opportunity to give its version of the sinking of the ship which cost the lives of two Americans, apparently in defiance of President Wilson's warning that such an act would be "deliberately unfriendly." The ambassador's telegram was not made public as officials were in some doubt whether to give it out here or wait for Count Bernstorff to do so in New York. Meanwhile they declined to discuss it.

His request comes as the first word from German sources since the ship was sunk five days ago and indicates that the German government may have some facts which in its opinion justify the action of the submarine commander.
It comes as the first ray of promise on a situation which admittedly was growing darker with each hour of silence on the part of Germany.
Now in view of the ambassador's request the State Department can do nothing but wait a reasonable time for word from Berlin.

Count von Bernstorff in his telegram said that if any Americans had been killed, it was contrary to the intention of the German government and that it was not the intention of the German government to sink any peaceful merchant ship in a flagrant manner.

ANOTHER ONE NOW CLAIMED

By Associated Press.
London, August 24.—The latest dispatches concerning the Riga naval battle has failed to clear up the situation. Petrograd advices make it appear that the Germans met with severe reverses, although Berlin remains silent on the subject.
The Russians now state that an additional cruiser must be added to those already reported sunk, or put out of commission.
Whether the battle cruiser Moltke attacked by a British submarine, was sunk, remains to be told.

TEUTONIC FORCES ARE CLOSING IN ON BREST LITOVSK

By Associated Press.
London, August 24.—Teutonic armies are closing in on Brest Litovsk and further progress by the Austro-Germans against the Russians in all the fields of operation except to the north of the Nieman in the Baltic provinces is claimed by Berlin today.

An Overseas Agency dispatch says in Berlin no report on the Arabic has been received, and in any event the Arabic was a British ship and on the way to obtain another cargo of ammunition.

GERMAN PRESS SAYS LITTLE

By Associated Press.
Berlin, via London, August 24.—No further details concerning the sinking of the Arabic have been published here and no comment is being made.
The papers published what purports to be a Greek dispatch to the London Telegraph quoting Joseph Tumulty, President Wilson's secretary, as saying Americans are united with the president, and will, if necessary, offer their lives to maintain the inalienable rights of Americans on land and sea.
One paper says "These inalienable rights as is known consist of using British vessels for passenger steamers."

OFFICIALS WORKING ON FRANK LYNCHING

Coroner's Verdict Is That Frank Met Death at Hands of Parties Unknown—All City and County Officials Claim They Are Doing Best to Run to Earth Men Who Blackened Name of Georgia.

By Associated Press.
Marietta, Ga., August 24.—Without being able to elicit from anyone of the eleven witnesses a single clue as to the identity of any person connected with the lynching of Leo M. Frank near this city last Thursday morning, a coroner's verdict today states that Frank came to his death by hanging at the hands of parties unknown.
City and county officials testified that they had endeavored diligently to get at the facts of the lynching but so far their efforts have been of no avail.
"Of course you know these things are kept pretty close and are hard to find out," said Mayor E. Dobbs, of Marietta.
Deputy Sheriff Hicks and City Marshal Looney stated they were working hard on the case but at this time could throw no light on the identity of the parties who participated in the lynching.
The nearest discovery as to what happened in the oak grove near the Fry place came from J. A. Benson, a Marietta merchant, who drove by the place soon after the lynching party had parked its autos by the roadside and had led Frank to the tree where death awaited him.

Mr. Benson said he had "pretty good suspicion" as to what was going on but he did not stop to see it and did not recognize anybody connected with the lynching.
W. J. Frey, owner of the place where the lynching occurred testified that when he reached the grove with two other men "there wasn't anybody in the grove but Leo M. Frank." Frey told of seeing three or four autos go by his place about 6:30 or 7 o'clock that morning and that the man he afterwards found out was Frank, was seated in a rear seat, bareheaded, and with a man on either side of him. He said Frank was dressed in what looked like a thin night shirt.
He declared he did not recognize any other person and said they all wore goggles and their faces were covered with dust.
The jury was composed of six residents of the county. Attorney John Dorsey represented the state of Georgia and Gordon Gann acted as attorney for the coroner.

Port Au Prince, Haiti, August 24.—The United States government has addressed the government of Haiti expressing the desire that there be accepted without delay the draft of a convention with provision for ten years, under which there shall be established an effective Haitian customs as well as administration of the finances of the country, under a receiver general.

THE GOVERNOR TO FIGHT FOR M'DERMOTT LAW

Columbus, O., August 24.—Governor Willis this afternoon gave out a statement in which he said he is vigorously opposed to the proposed referendum on the McDermott liquor license law.
The statement added that the governor has called a meeting of the liquor license commission to determine if any of the officers are involved in the movement for the referendum.
Removal from office is promised, if evidence is found establishing any such conduct.

FLOOD VICTIMS ARE SUFFERING

St. Louis, August 24.—Two thousand residents of Valley Park, Mo., made homeless Sunday when the 35 foot rise of the Meramec river flooded the town with 10 to 15 feet of water, today faced a food and drinking water shortage, which threatened to result disastrously.
Truck loads of food were rushed from St. Louis but this was consumed over night.

TRANSPORTS RODE TO DESTRUCTION

London, August 24.—From details of the attempted German landing in the Gulf of Riga, last Saturday, published in a newspaper here, it appears, says a dispatch from Petrograd, that three large transports filled with troops, were sunk by shore batteries after a two hour duel with vessels of the German squadron.
The German ships, the report says, were allowed to come close to land before a terrific artillery fire was opened by the Russians.

DRY FIGHT TO BEGIN SEPT. 15

Newark, O., August 24.—Leaders of the Ohio anti-saloon league met at Buckeye Lake today to form plans for the campaign this fall in behalf of state-wide prohibition. Members of the executive committee and county chairmen attended.
James A. White, Supt. of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League presided. It was learned, although no official announcement was made, that the campaign for state-wide prohibition would be formally opened as early as the middle of September.

ARKANSAS TOWNS SUFFER

FIRST STEP TAKEN TO AID PLANTERS

Government Promises Thirty Million Dollar Cotton Loan.

WILL BE DEPOSITED IN SOUTH

Loans at Low Rates of Interest Will Enable Cotton Planters to Hold Back From the Market a Part of Their Crops, Thus Helping the Price—Secretary of Treasury McAdoo's Announcement.

Washington, Aug. 24.—The first step on the part of the federal government to relieve the southern cotton planters has been taken. Announcement was made at the treasury department that Secretary McAdoo will deposit $30,000,000 in gold in the federal reserve banks of Atlanta, Dallas and Richmond, if so large a sum is needed, in order to facilitate the financing of the cotton crop. This step was decided upon as a result of the action of the allies in putting cotton on the contraband list.

The deposits, according to the official announcement, will be "for the purpose of enabling those federal reserve banks to rediscount loans made on cotton secured by warehouse receipts by national banks and those state banks that are members of the federal reserve system."

No interest will be charged on these deposits. It is intended that the deposits shall make it possible for the member banks to charge low rates on loans to warehouse cotton, and indications are that the federal reserve board will fix extremely low rates on rediscounted paper of this character.

No disclosures have been made as to what other steps are under contemplation for the relief of the cotton situation.

The idea of government officials is that loans at low rates of interest will enable cotton planters to hold back from the market a part of their crops, thus helping the price.

NOT BROKE BUT LOUSY WITH COIN

New York, Aug. 24.—While no one of the local bankers claims to know the exact state of Germany's internal finances, it is known that Germany is practically living within itself. The last reports show that Germany's gold reserves amount to $989,000,000, while Austria has in reserve $291,000,000. The total gold of the world is $8,800,000,000, of which Germany and Austria have $1,280,000,000. Against these enormous reserves are the immense issues of war bonds and notes, but these concern nobody but the Germans. Since the beginning of the war Germany has been buying little, com-

The shooting occurred when the girl attempted to take a young child, who was crying, from her stepfather. Poehlman became enraged and shot her.

HAITI REBELS SAUCY AGAIN

Washington, Aug. 24.—The United States is making preparations to meet any emergency that may arise in Haiti. Disorders in the north of the republic, where the natives have refused to give up their arms, and inflammatory utterances by Dr. Bobo, the deposed Haitian leader, foreshadow a possible disturbance. According to a dispatch received at the navy department from Rear Admiral Caperton, a few shots were fired in the outskirts of Port au Prince. There were no casualties. Within a week or so the naval forces of the United States in Haiti will be increased 450 marines, artillery division of that branch of the service.

TAKES STEP TO EXPEDITE PROBE

Only Establishment of New Facts in Connection With the Sinking of the Liner or a Disavowal of the Act by Berlin Can Avert a Break in Diplomatic Relations Between United States and Germany.

Washington, Aug. 24.—If after a full investigation of the facts the Washington administration is convinced that Germany committed a "deliberately unfriendly" act in the sinking of the steamship Arabic, diplomatic relations between the two governments will immediately be severed. The sinking of the White Star liner, as it now appears from unofficial reports, is regarded by Washington authorities as constituting an act of that character. Only the establishment of new facts in connection with the Arabic or a disavowal of Germany of the act of her submarine commander, can therefore avert a crisis in the relations between the United States and Germany. This was learned here on high authority. President Wilson will avail himself of every opportunity within the honor and dignity of the United States government to avoid a rupture with Germany, but he will go no further. There will be no backward step from the warning conveyed in the last note.

The information obtained here sweeps away every vestige of doubt as to the president's resolution to deal firmly and quickly with the situation, once he is convinced that American rights on the high seas have been deliberately violated by the German government. Until such information is at hand, though, Mr. Wilson and Secretary Lansing will reserve final judgment on the sinking of the Arabic. The hope of the president and his advisers is that this judgment will not long be deferred.

Steps have been taken to expedite matters. Instructions were sent to Ambassador Page at London to cable a summary of the affidavits obtained by him and a message also went forward to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin directing him to inquire of the Berlin foreign office if a report had been received from the commander of the German submarine in regard to the sinking of the Arabic. Also the opportunity will be had for Germany to make any statement in her own defense if she desires to do so.

If Germany desires to play for time she will have the means at her disposal for doing so, for President Wilson is determined that this government shall do nothing rashly.

The secretary to the president made the following statement: "With reference to the sinking of the Arabic, as soon as all the facts are established, our course of action will be determined."

SUPPLEMENTARY ANNOUNCEMENT

London, Aug. 24.—The British admiralty made the following announcement with regard to the sinking of the Arabic: "The Arabic was an unarmed

passenger ship, outward bound for a neutral port; it was impossible for her to have been carrying contraband to this country, and she was sunk by a German submarine without warning and she neither attempted to attack the submarine nor to escape from it."

REFERENDUM ON M'DERMOTT ACT

Columbus, Aug. 24.—Fifteen thousand blank petitions for a referendum on the McDermott liquor license law were put in circulation for signatures. The form of the petition was approved by Secretary of State Hildebrandt. The petitions then were turned over by the legal firm of McGhee, Davis and Boulger to Judge Frank H. Kerr of Steubenville, who is to have charge of their circulation. Judge Kerr is a Republican. To secure a referendum on the McDermott law about 67,000 signatures must be filed before Sept. 23.

FRENCH MOVE ON

Paris, Aug. 24.—French batteries were turned on the German trenches on the crests of Ling and the Barrenkopf and after the German forces there had been pretty completely disorganized, the French troops charged and captured a considerable portion of the defenses.

TURKISH ENVOY HUSTLES HOME

Rome, Aug. 24.—The Turkish ambassador to Rome did not leave for Switzerland until last evening. His departure was delayed because Holland declined the request of the Turkish government to look after Turkish interests in Italy. The Spanish embassy, however, assumed this responsibility.

ANOTHER SHIP ON OCEAN BED

Quebec, Aug. 24.—The British steamship Diomed has been sunk by a German submarine. Her captain, quartermaster and steward were killed by shells fired by the submarine during a pursuit of four hours. Seven persons later were drowned.

ARKANSAS FLOODS

Newport Ark., Aug. 24.—Eight persons are reported drowned, crops are destroyed, towns are flooded, railroad traffic suspended and 100 square miles are under water as a result of the worst flood in the history of this state. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000.

GERMANS LOSE BOAT

Paris, Aug. 24.—"Two French torpedo boats encountered and sank a German torpedo boat destroyer off Ostend, Belgium," says an announcement made here. "Our boats were undamaged."

The Battle on the Sea

The Russian fleet, with the assistance of the British, has won a signal victory over the German fleet which was endeavoring to batter its way into the Gulf of Riga for the purpose of landing troops and furnishing a much needed base of supplies for the armies of the Kaiser in the campaign to capture or disable the army of Grand Duke Nicholas.

Emboldened by the marvelous victories of the land forces in Poland over the Russian troops, the Germans began the attack on the sea with every confidence of success.

That confidence proved to have been builded on a false foundation and the complete triumph of the Czar's sea fighters is the most severe defeat the Kaiser's forces have sustained in the present war.

Not only is the loss in men and vessels a tremendous one, not only is the failure to establish a much needed base at Riga one which casts the somber shadow of probable defeat over the whole campaign against Russia, but the loss in prestige which the German armies must necessarily suffer at this time when the Balkan states are hesitating as to which side they will cast their lot with, is grave indeed.

The failure of the Russian land forces to give a better account of themselves on the field of battle has been a surprise to the critics, but not so great a surprise as has the signal victories of the Russian naval forces over the Germans, the Austrians and the Turks whenever and wherever they have clashed.

In the war with Japan the Russian navy proved wholly inefficient and disloyal, while the land troops rendered a better account of themselves. Thus far in this war the reverse has been the case.

The effect of Germany's marvelous victories in Poland and Russia have been eclipsed in one day's fighting on the sea in the Gulf of Riga, so far as prestige is concerned. The dearly bought victories of yesterday are forgotten in the reverses of today by those who secretly oppose the Teutons, but might remain neutral or become allies for selfish reasons.

Scarcely a day passes without furnishing its striking proof of the marked advance of temperance.

It is no longer the task of the preacher, the professional temperance worker nor yet of the startling agitator to promote the cause of temperance. Temperance has long since passed the theoretic stage, has left far behind it that time when it was pleasant to think that some day temperance might prevail. It has now reached the stage when it is an essential to practical business success, recognized and insisted upon by all men who make and who wish to make progress in the world of cold practical business which knows no theory that does not pay dividends in dollars and cents, either directly or indirectly.

Only a few days ago advertising men from widely separated sections of the nation met in Chicago.

"Truth" and its beneficial effect upon all legitimate business enterprises was the main topic of discussion. Quite naturally the range of the discussion embraced the cause of temperance.

Many of the speakers before the assembled "ad men" called attention to the well known and frequently mentioned fact that no longer do men engaged in legitimate business enterprises feel called upon to take a prospective customer to the bar rooms and treat him to intoxicating drinks, and every time that fact was mentioned the speaker drew a round of applause.

It was the unanimous expression of the speakers, that the old time custom was not only utterly useless as a foundation upon which to build permanent and profitable trade relations but, now days, such a practice would in almost every instance result in loss of trade.

A striking contrast with a quarter of a century ago, yet presenting a history of progress in perfect accord with that which records the progress of every true movement for good.

When practical business lays hold of a reform movement and adopts it as one of the requisites to remaining in business the ultimate triumph of that reform is not assured—it is a fact accomplished.

Temperance is no longer the talk of the impractical dreamer. It is the keystone of the arch upon which present day business is builded.

Poetry For Today

MY ORIENT.

Spellbound beside the languid stream
Breathing the lotus balms,
I lie amid the ferns and dream
Of Oriental palms.

Where now, with most ungainly
strides,
The lazy heron feeds.
Methinks the sacred ibis hides
Among the river reeds.

The sunbeam's golden arrows fall
About me in the grass;
I hear the midges' bugle call
To combat, as they pass.

I see the emmets' pyramid
And watch their caravans,
Like camels on the march amid
Sahara's desert sands.

One horseman dashes o'er the plain
One stands beside the gate;
Al Hassan seeks the camel train,
While Mahmoud lies in wait.

An aged sheik, with wrinkled brows,
Sits in the evening sun,
And gathers dates from oaken boughs
As I perhaps have done.

The silent twilight hour draws near,
The crescent gleams in air,
And I, expectant, wait to hear
Muzzin's call to prayer.

Bits of Byplay

A Good Excuse.
The cheerful giver's honest plea
In this life that we live,
Is that it's mighty seldom he
Has anything to give.

Nothing Doing.
"We should share one another's burdens," said the good parson as he stopped the souse on the street and sought to give him some good advice.
"You ain't going to share any of this load," replied the souse. "It cost me good money."

Rocks.
"While rocks will wreck a ship at sea," Soliloquized wise headed Hank;
"It's mighty queer, it seems to me,
A lack of rocks will wreck a bank."

The Wise Fool.
"The burnt child dreads the fire," observed the sage.
"Yes," replied the fool. "But the burnt grownup goes back and takes another chance as soon as the blisters heal."

Soft and Hard.
"I know one truth," said Mr. Croft,
"And on it I will bet;
Though paper money may feel soft,
It's mighty hard to get."

Why He Ate at Home.
"Hello, is that you, dear?" asked Mr. Rounder over the phone. "I called you up to tell you that I will not be home to dinner. My friend, John Brown, is in town."
"I'm so glad," replied Mrs. Rounder. "I was so afraid you might be home tonight. My friend Tom Jones is in town. Goodbye, dear."

Should Say Not.
Luke McLuke says a wise wife doesn't attempt to reform her husband. No, indeed; the woman who gets it into her head that she has a husband to reform simply works for nothing eighteen hours a day and boards herself, and there's no profit in that sort of business.—Houston Post.

The Byplay Minstrels.
"Mr. Interlocutor, can you tell me the difference between a white baby and a black baby?"
"No, Mr. Bones, I cannot. Will you kindly tell us the difference?"
"One is crocheted (crow shade) and the other is knit (nit)."
"As soon as the police have clubbed the audience into submission Mr. Russ T. Pypes will render that pathetic ballad, 'I'll Kiss You, Darling, If You'll Wipe Your Mouth.'"

Sure!
"So this is a Christian nation," exclaimed the man from Mars, who was being shown the sights here. "And what is the distinguishing characteristic of a Christian nation?"
"Why, our pugilists make more than our preachers," replied the guide.

Things to Worry About.
Friday the 13th happens only once in 1915.

Luke McLuke Says

If people got what they needed most a lot of the girls would wake up on Christmas morning and find safety razors in their stockings.
The girls are all great on culture. But so far I haven't seen any of them trying to drink their beer through a straw.

Men regard women as toys. But the ones wearing the brightest paint are not always the most popular.
The wedding day kiss is loaded with dynamite. But the tin wedding day kiss is loaded with cold mush.

Married women ought to make good jurors. They know what darned lars all the men are, and they are wise to all the alibis.

What if any is the difference between the old time tank melderdrummer and the modern six reel movie filum?

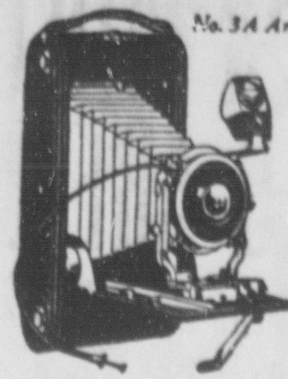

A man believes that the other fellow's girl may be faithful. But he knows that his girl is pure and irreproachable.

What is the use of fussing around and courting a girl for two years when you can cop her out or know where you stand the very first night you meet her?

Appearances are deceitful. The man who thumps the bar the hardest when he tries to attract the barkeep's attention isn't always the fellow who is going to pay for the drinks.

Mother will gather up all her coffee checks, soap tags, trading stamps and grocery checks and will get a lot of Christmas presents with them. And father will come home and indignately about mother spending all his good money for a lot of junk to give to people who will not appreciate it.

FLEETEST OF ALL DOGS.

Greyhounds Can Run as Fast as Carrier Pigeons Can Fly.

Comparatively few people realize of what remarkable speed dogs are capable. The wolf can run between fifty and sixty miles in one night, and the arctic fox can do quite as well, if not better. Nansen met one of these foxes on the ice at a point more than seventy miles northwest of the Sannkow territory, which is 480 miles from the Asiatic coast. Eskimo and Siberian dogs can travel forty-five miles on the ice in five hours, and there is one case on record in which a team of Eskimo dogs traveled six and one-half miles in twenty-eight minutes.

English setters and pointers hunt at the rate of eighteen to nineteen miles an hour, and they can maintain the speed for at least two hours. Foxhounds are extraordinarily swift, as is proved by the fact that a dog of this breed once beat a thoroughbred horse, covering four miles in six and one-half minutes. Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four footed creatures, and their speed may be regarded as equal to that of carrier pigeons. English greyhounds which are carefully selected and which are used for coursing are able to cover at full gallop a space between eighteen and twenty-three yards every second. It is said that a hare at its greatest speed never goes faster than at the rate of eighteen yards a second. These interesting statistics fully prove the right of the greyhounds to rank as the swiftest of the quadrupeds.—Springfield Republican.

VIOLENT DEATHS.

One Indication Is the Immediate Settling In of Rigor Mortis.

More than once the question of whether a person has died a natural or unnatural death turns upon something grasped in the hand. The object is held because the hand stiffens through what is known as rigor mortis (pronounced rye-gor mor-tis), a stiffening of the muscles of the body after death. Now, if a person dies naturally this stiffening of the muscles does not take place, as a rule, until two hours or more after death, and then it comes on slowly. In cases of violent death, however, rigor mortis sets in immediately. It is through this that many a murderer has been caught and many a so called accidental death proved to be intentional.

One of the most remarkable effects of this sudden stiffening after death appears in the account of the charge of Balgclaya. Captain Nolan while riding at the head of the noble six hundred had his chest torn open by a Russian shell.

The arm he was waving in the air at the moment remained high uplifted, and he retained his seat on his horse, which wheeled around and passed some distance through the ranks before the rider fell.

Portions of the hair and clothing of a murderer have often been found in the hands of the victim, while bodies recovered from the water have brought with them clutched in their fingers weeds and mud from the bottom, showing that death occurred in the water and not on land.—London Answers.

Australia's Bottle Tree.
The bottle tree is a native of Australia. It has a trunk of extraordinary expansion and disproportionateness which is greater when the ground is rocky. In fertile soil the trunk forms a uniform cylindrical column, from whose summit the branches issue as from the neck of a bottle, hence the name.

"Oh, that's different. I don't know."

LARGE BARN WITH CONTENTS AND SILO ARE DESTROYED

Mysterious Fire on Richard Sollars' Farm, Near City, Causes Loss of Several Thousand Dollars—Towing Car, Machinery, Harness, Grain and Hay Consumed With Big Barn and Silo—Was in Path of Recent Tornado.

The large barn and silo on the Richard Sollars farm, one mile east of this city on the Devalon road were completely destroyed by fire between eight and nine o'clock Monday night, entailing a loss of several thousand dollars with only $1000 insurance on the buildings and contents. The fire was of mysterious origin.

The fire started in the hay loft and when first noticed had burst from the roof and the building and contents were doomed. Mr. and Mrs. Sollars had just returned from this city about 30 minutes before the fire and placed their touring car in the barn. They had been asleep but a few minutes when they were aroused and the barn was a mass of flames.

Neighbors rushed in to render what assistance they could, and a number of people from this city hurried out, but the flames had gained

such a foothold that it was impossible to do anything but endeavor to keep the flames from spreading.

In the barn was a large amount of new hay, oats, harness, machinery, the Sollars' touring car, carriage and buggy. All were completely destroyed. The flames communicated to the silo adjoining the barn and it was soon doomed. When it became apparent that the silo could not be saved, the guy wires were cut and the structure allowed to fall into the burning barn to prevent it falling outward and setting fire to a large straw pile nearby. The wind also carried the flames from the straw pile and it was saved.

It is not known how the fire originated, whether it was due to spontaneous combustion, sparks from a passing B. & O. freight—the tracks being about 300 feet distant, or was kindled by a "firebug." Many believe the blaze to be of incendiary origin.

The loss is a heavy one to Mr. Sollars, who suffered severely from the recent tornado which swept this city and surrounding territory. At that time part of his house was torn away, necessitating the rebuilding of a portion of it, and other buildings were damaged. The barn destroyed was a large one and one of the most substantial in the county.

Mr. Sollars will rebuild immediately, it is understood.

Mr. Louis Hall had a narrow escape from death in the Sloane Hotel at Sandusky the first of this week, sustaining a broken arm and other painful injuries in a very unusual accident.

Mr. Hall, who travels in the interest of the F. M. Hoyt Co., of Manchester, N. H., was preparing to start on his fall trip. Crossing the hotel lobby to the elevator, he was reading a letter and did not notice that the elevator boy had stepped away and left the door open to the empty elevator shaft. Thinking he was stepping into the elevator Mr. Hall plunged twelve feet down the hollow shaft to the basement.

His right arm was broken at the wrist; his hip and leg badly bruised and numerous other bruises on his body, but the wonder is that he was not instantly killed. He reached this city Monday night and was at once taken to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Hall, on Dayton avenue.

It will probably be some time before Mr. Hall will be able to go on his trip.

Ruth, the little seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Campbell, residing on the Lewis pike is recovering from injuries sustained in a frightful accident last week, when one-half of her hair was caught on the shafting of a power washing machine and torn from her head, at the same time cutting her right index finger off.

The little girl was in the wash house with her mother and in bending over one of the braids of hair touched the wet shafting which immediately began winding up the braid. The child in struggling to free herself from the shafting got her finger between the braid and the shafting and the finger was severed at the first joint. Before the engine could be stopped the shafting had completed its work of tearing the entire braid—composed of one-half of the child's hair, out by the root, causing frightful agony and leaving half of the head as if it had been shaved.

Fortunately the scalp was not torn and the physicians believe that the scalp will throw out another growth of hair so that within a few years the one side will have as luxuriant growth of hair as the other.

The following order issued by the Postmaster General regarding the insurance of fourth-class matter instead of registering, becomes effective Wednesday of next week.

"Fourth-class mail shall not be registered, but may be insured against loss in an amount equivalent to its actual value, but not to exceed $5.00 in any one case, on payment of a fee of three cents; not to exceed $25.00 on payment of a fee of five cents; not to exceed $50.00 on payment of a fee of ten cents; or not to exceed $100.00 on payment of a fee of twenty-five cents, in addition to the postage, both to be prepaid by stamps affixed; but indemnity will not be allowed in case of loss of such mail addressed to the Philippine Islands, unless the loss occurred in the postal service of the United States."

CONCRETE BASE IS NEARING COMPLETION

The Andrews Asphalt Company will, within the next day or two, complete the concrete base on the East Court street improvement, and the work of laying the asphalt—the first to be laid in this city, will be taken up immediately, and with favorable weather the street will be thrown open to traffic Saturday evening or Sunday.

Unlike brick streets it does not require sometime for the paving to become "set."

A NEW IDEA IN THEATRICALS. The opening bill of the Al Flatco Musical Comedy Company which comes to the Empire Thursday, Friday and Saturday is "Wedded Bliss" an uproariously funny musical farce in two acts. In addition to a large company of principals Mr. Flatco carried a beauty chorus. The prices will be ten, twenty and thirty cents for the best seats. advt.

JACKSON HIGHWAY BRANCH MAY COME TO WASHINGTON

Opportunity Afforded Ohio Cities to Be Located Upon Part of Jackson Highway Leading to Cleveland, and Hustling Will Be Necessary to Bring Famous Thoroughfare This Way.

It has become known that there is splendid opportunity for cities in Ohio between Cleveland, Columbus and Aberdeen on the Ohio river to be on the route of a great national north-and-south highway, 1600 miles in length and penetrating sections of unusual scenic beauty and historic interest.

An eastern division of the Jackson highway is being promoted and the route considered in a tentative way north of Maysville, Ky., may touch such cities as Hillsboro, Washington Court House or Chillicothe, Columbus, Delaware, Mt. Gilead, Galion, Mansfield, New London, Wellington, Oberlin, Elyria, Circleville, Wooster, Akron, Medina. Of course, all of these cities cannot be touched and if some are named on a route, others of necessity must be left off it.

To consider plans for the general meeting in Nashville, at which hundreds of Jackson Highway enthusiasts are expected to be present, vice presidents will meet in Louisville at 2 p. m. on September 2. Reports of accomplishments in individual states thus far will likely be heard at that meeting.

A Jackson Highway was conceived some five years ago by the Daughters of 1812, a Southern patriotic society. Birmingham, Ala. clubwomen first proposed the highway. It was proposed to make it a great north-and-south road between New Orleans and Chicago, touching in the south scenes of the civil and military life of Andrew Jackson and following in a general way south of Nashville the path of General Jackson's march against the British and Indians in New Orleans. The highway was to be a monument to this former president and military hero.

As originally planned cities to be touched between New Orleans and Chicago, were among others Pensacola, Fla., Montgomery, Ala., Birmingham, Ala., Nashville, Tenn., Louisville, Ky., and Indianapolis, Ind.

Cities in Kentucky between Louisville and Maysville became much interested a short time ago and an eastern division of the Jackson highway from Louisville by way of Shelbyville, Frankfort, Lexington, Paris, and Carlisle was proposed with Cleveland, Ohio as a northern terminal. This route in Kentucky would follow the fine old Kentucky State pike for 142 miles.

Kentucky advocates of the eastern division will form an organization in Frankfort, August 26, and are anxious to enlist Ohio co-operation.

TRICKING SUBMARINES.

Rules by Which Vessels May Escape Their Torpedo Attacks.

It is the surprise attack which in nearly every case enables a submarine to torpedo a hostile ship. There are several maneuvers by means of which a ship can trick a submarine. Several vessels have diverted torpedoes by swinging round their stern until it points in the direction of the undersea craft. In this way the wash of the propellers has deflected the torpedo from its course and it has sped harmlessly past its mark. Another successful ruse is to stoke up the furnaces of a ship chased by a submarine, and thick, black smoke belches from its funnels and envelops the vessel in a protective shroud. In this way the submarine gunners are confused and cannot perceive the correct direction in which to send their torpedo.

A speedy ship which follows an erratic, zigzag course presents a poor mark to a submarine. When a torpedo is dispatched against a fast traveling vessel it is directed to a point just ahead of its mark, and the craft literally runs into the death dealing device. This obviously cannot happen, however, if a ship is swinging rapidly from side to side and alternately pointing the narrow expanse of its bows or stern to the undersea marksmen.

A submarine seldom attacks a vessel if it is not alone, for it can only attack one at a time, and while it is launching a torpedo at its first mark the second vessel has an excellent opportunity of ramming the submarine, which can be located by its telltale periscope.—Pearson's Weekly.

THE ENTRANCE HALL.

Make It Suit Not Visitors, but the Occupants of the Home.

Is anything new to be said about the entrance hall? The smallest room in most houses, it is usually given in the plans an amount of attention that might seem out of all proportion to the rest of the house. And yet the ordinary entrance, whether it be a mere vestibule, a spacious hall of the colonial style or, as in our present day fashions, a part of the living room set off by an archway, is quite unsatisfactory. It is unsatisfactory for this reason—that the entrance way is designed and decorated from the standpoint of the impression it makes on visitors, whereas the impression we should seek is not that made upon guests, but upon ourselves, the occupants of the house.

Too often we give the entrance a severe treatment that impresses the student of beauty or that amazes the less discriminating visitor by the other extreme of lavish display. But how does either of these two types of entrance affect those who come into the house many times every day, the good man and his good wife and their children? Is it a room that by its suggestion of rest and repose tempts one after a hard day's work at the office to drop into the first easy chair that comes along, or does it irritate the nerves and keep one going, restless and uneasy, wandering from the entrance to the living room and from the living room to the study and thence to the attic by way of the basement?—Good House.

Suppressing Swearing.

Profane as well as legal oaths have been the subject of many parliamentary measures in England. No fewer than five separate bills having the prevention of swearing for their object were presented during the reign of James I., but it was not until 1633 that an enactment was finally carried defining and controlling the offense. In 1635 a public department was established to collect the fines enforced by this law. The officials of this department, of whom one was appointed in every parish, were allowed 2s. 6d. in the pound on the money thus collected, and the balance was paid over to the bishop for the benefit of the deserving poor. These penalties ceased to be enforced after the restoration, but were revived by a statute of William and Mary and still further increased under George II.

Stereoscopic Surveying.

There is in use a stereoscopic method of photographic surveying. Photographs are taken at two points with a surveying camera, the plates being exposed in the vertical plane passing through both stations. The developed plates, or positives from them, being then placed in a stereoscopic measuring machine that combines the pictures, a brief calculation gives the exact position of any desired point. The effective range of the instrument is put at about five miles, and the method is said to be of particular advantage in mapping large areas of mountainous country.

In Social Circles

Mrs. George Jackson and daughter Miss Emma, have been the inspiration of many delightful social affairs, but none more pleasurable nor set apart by distinctive beauty of appointment than the luncheon, given in compliment to Mrs. Michael Salathiel Creamer, of Los Angeles, Cal., Tuesday.

The table, laid with twelve covers, was exquisite in Irish crochet luncheon set and a white and yellow color scheme carried out to perfection in gold banded china, an immense brass bowl of nasturtiums, their lovely tints of orange and yellow reflected back from the table mirror in the center, and dainty place cards.

An elaborate luncheon menu of five courses, embracing summer delicacies new and tempting, was served.

The spacious rooms throughout the home were made doubly attractive with a profusion of marigolds, blackeyed daisies and zenias, gracefully arranged in brass vases and wicker baskets.

The guests lingered long after the luncheon, thoroughly enjoying the visit with Mrs. Creamer, whose years of absence in the west, have but increased the charm of her vivacious personality.

Mrs. Fred Sprenger, of Marion, Ill., the guest of Mrs. Frank S. Jackson, and Miss Ruth Van Kirk of Yellow Springs, Miss Dorothy Fullerton's guest, were among the guests.

Paul and Robert Craig and their guests, Erwin Bailey of Detroit, and Ralph Mountain of Columbus, go to Sweet Briar Ridge Wednesday for a ten days' outing. Logan Herbert comes down from Columbus the last of the week to join them.

For four years this crowd has held an annual camp and the conveniences of the cottage at the Ridge will make it doubly enjoyable this year.

A number of camp affairs are planned and it is a foregone conclusion that there will be "something doing" at the Ridge during the boys' stay.

Miss Rose McLean entertained at a pretty little dinner Monday evening. Miss Jean Howat and guest Miss Katharine Kelley, of Xenia, Messrs Edwards Hopkins and James Ballard.

Robert Craig went to Columbus Monday afternoon to meet Erwin Bailey, who came down from Detroit, Mich., to be his guest.

Dr. Willard Burke of New York visited Mr. Jos. N. Willson and family the first of the week. He is now the guest of Mt. Sterling relatives, returning to the east Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Larrimer and Mr. Luther Dickey, of Bloomingburg, leave Wednesday for a tour of the west, and will return sometime in October.

Mr. and Mrs. Werter Shoop have returned from a month's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Carse, in Orrilia, Canada, and trip on the lakes. Mr. and Mrs. Leck Shoop and daughter Lucy, motored with them down from Columbus.

Mrs. C. H. Estey of Columbus, who with her husband, was taking a trip in northern Ohio, accompanied her brother, Mr. Louis Hall, from Sandusky Monday night and will remain for a couple of days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Hall.

The Gossard party writes that they are enroute home, starting from Idaho Falls on Sunday. They had a wonderful trip through the Yellow Stone Park and have taken in every place of interest enroute. With no bad luck they ought to be home in a couple of weeks.

Miss Grace Pavey, of Columbus, who has been visiting Mrs. Val McCoy, left Tuesday for Sabina, where she will spend the week. Washington friends will be interested to learn that Miss Pavey expects to enter upon a course in trained nursing at the Mt. Carmel hospital the middle of September.

CORN VERY LATE FEAR OF FROST

Many farmers are now fearful lest their corn crop be nipped by the early frosts, but the average farmer who planted his corn at the usual time and did not have to plant the corn a second time in order to obtain a stand, is resting easy.

It is the man who failed to get his corn planted in reasonable time, or was forced to plant over again, who is anxious about the corn maturing before frost falls.

The continued wet weather has retarded the development of the corn to some extent, and as a result corn cutting will be later than usual.

The Tail of a Fish.

A fish's tail is its wings. Owing to the machinery of muscle set along its spine and to its cleaving form a trout or salmon can dart through the water at a tremendous pace, though its rapid flights, unlike the bird's, are not long ones. It is soon tired. The water is not so friendly to flight as the air. The stroke of the fish's tail is one of great power, and by means of it and the writhing, snakelike flexion of the body a high speed is reached. The strength behind this speed is shown in the way a fish or sea mammal out of the water will raise its tail and strike the ground or boat.

'NOTHER GERMAN VICTORY

Ossowiec, Important Russian
Garrison, Lost to the Czar.

RUSS CONTINUE TO FALL BACK

Germans Aiming to Partially Envelop
Brest-Litovsk, the Pivotal Point in
Present Line of Russian Defense,
Before Commencing a General Assault—Seventh Important Fort in German Hands.

London, Aug. 24.—Ossowiec, another important Russian fortification, fell to
the Germans, while elsewhere along
the entire front south of Kovno the Russians continued to fall back.

At Brest-Litovsk, the pivotal point
in the present line of Russian defense,
there has been no advance made, according to the admission of the German authorities. Little hope, however,
can be attached to this fact, because
it has been apparent for the past two or three days that the Germans at this point are aiming to partially en-
velop the stronghold before commencing a general assault.

In pursuance of either one of the plans of strategy the forces under
Prince Leopold of Bavaria and Field
Marshal Von Mackensen continued to hammer away at the Russian line with unabated fury. Both Prince Leopold,
to the north of Brest-Litovsk, and Von Mackensen, at the south, continued to advance in the face of apparently very determined resistance offered by the Russians.

The fall of Ossowiec is not regarded by the military observers here as an alarming event, or as anything more,
in fact, than an incident in the enforced retreat of the Russian armies.
It is the seventh great fort to fall
since the capture of Warsaw.

Of all the Russian fortresses which
have been captured by the Austrians
and Germans in such rapid succession
during the last three weeks, Ossowiec
made the longest resistance. During the winter and spring several futile
attacks were made by the Germans on this side position. Even after the Germans had swept through Poland and the Baltic provinces, Ossowiec still
held out.

Effect of Riga Battle.

Military observers here say that the battle in the Gulf of Riga, in which the German battle cruiser Moltke, three cruisers and seven torpedo boats were destroyed, will seriously hinder the German advance. With Riga still in Russian hands, Von Hindenburg's further advance toward Petrograd is menaced. Von Hindenburg had succeeded in pushing far beyond Riga to Jacobstadt, on the river Dvina.

Some of the details regarding the fall of Novogeorgievsk may now be recounted. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon of Aug. 18 General Von Beseler,
commanding the German forces, gave
the Russian general one hour in which to surrender the fort. The Kaiser addressed the army in a ringing voice.
He complimented them on the victory
and declared "the God of hosts has been with us and with his aid we hope
to continue to conquer."

After a brief conference with the
generals who accompanied him, the Kaiser proceeded into Novogeorgievsk.
Fires started by the Russians were burning everywhere. Explosions of ammunition which had been stored at various points were constant. Dead
Russian soldiers were lying at every
step in the midst of devastation
which was complete.

ITALIAN CAPTURE

Rome, Aug. 24.—The latest official reports from the front announce progress in the movement of Italian troops
against the Austrian stronghold of Tolmino, on the upper Isonzo, and the capture of some strong Austrian trenches on the Carso Nocturnal.

What is Tuberculosis?

TUBERCULOSIS or consumption, known also as "phthisis," is a treacherous disease caused by the growth in the body of millions of little rod-shaped germs called "tubercle bacilli," because as they multiply they produce small lumps or "tubercles." The germs are really tiny plant-like parasites, so small that they must be magnified hundreds of times under a powerful microscope before one can see them at all.

Being a parasite, the germ of tuberculosis, like the mistletoe or fungus growth, must live by taking life from something else, and on this account it lives in the body of human beings or animals better than anywhere else, in the eye, the skin, the knee or the spine, and most frequently in the lungs, and the other organs of breathing.

Outside of the body, the germs of tuberculosis may be easily killed, if they are exposed to direct sunlight for a few hours. Moist heat at 145 degree F., boiling water, or strong alkaline soaps, washing soda and similar household cleansing solutions will also kill them. If undisturbed, the germs of tuberculosis may live outside of the body in warm, moist, dark places, such as corners of rooms and hallways, for months or even years.

Because of the careless habits of people who have consumption and others, the germs of the disease are everywhere. Every time a person who has the bacilli in his sputum spits on the floor, sidewalk or in any other exposed place, the germs by the billions may become dry, and when stirred up by a broom or current of air may be inhaled by the chance passer. A speck of dust, such as one sees in the sunlight, may be the resting place of hundreds of these tiny germs. On this account nearly everybody at some time or other breathes in the living germs of tuberculosis.

Why then doesn't everyone die of tuberculosis? Because the germs of tuberculosis in the body cannot grow, unless they find certain tissues that are weak, flabby, or, as it is better called, "non-resistant." Everyone has a certain normal resistance to tuberculosis. If this resistance is lowered for any reason, the germs, which are almost always present in the body, will quickly find some tissue on which they can grow, and thus the disease is started. It takes more than the presence of the germ in the body to cause tuberculosis. It needs also a lowered vitality that will give the germ a chance to grow. It is like the seed and the soil. The scaly parasite that ruins a rosebush frequently comes from a poorly nourished soil. The tubercle bacillus is the seed; the body is the soil. If the soil is allowed to lose its normal and natural fertility, the seed will produce disease. If the soil is kept up to its full strength, this parasite seed cannot grow, and no tuberculosis will develop.

Once the germs begin to grow in the body, they produce injury to it in two ways:

(1) They destroy tissues. The destruction in the lung, for example, may amount to a very small spot, or it may be a large cavity, and not infrequently an entire lung. The sooner the disease is discovered, the smaller will be the amount of tissue destroyed, as a general rule.

(2) The growing germ, while it destroys the body tissues upon which it lives, also produces certain poisons or toxins, which, in turn, cause most of the symptoms of the disease. Thus, while the germs may be active in the lungs, the poison which they throw off goes through the entire system.

The commonest early symptoms of consumption are:
(1) Persistent cough or cold lasting a month or longer; (2) Loss of weight and appetite; (3) Run down feeling; (4) Afternoon temperature; (5) Night sweats; and (6) Spitting of blood or streaks of blood in sputum.

The presence of any of these symptoms should lead one to consult a physician at once. Tuberculosis can be cured if it is discovered in time. It costs little to be examined and cured. It is very expensive to delay and die.

[NOTE—This is the First of a Series of Five Articles Prepared by The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, New York City.]

TALK FEST AT COLUMBUS

TO SELECT SPEAKERS FOR GOVERNOR'S DAY

Chairmen of Rival State Com- mittees Receive Invitations.

Columbus, Aug. 24.—Chairmen of the state committees of the various political parties were invited by Secretary Dunlap of the board of agriculture to furnish a speaker for Governor's day, Sept. 2, at the state fair, when Governor Willis is to speak. Through the chairmen invitations were issued to leaders and voters of their parties to attend the fair on Governor's day.

The Republican organization has invited all the county executive and central committeemen in eighty-eight counties to a reception the morning of Sept. 2 at state headquarters, to be followed by luncheon at the Virginia Hotel. Senator Warren G. Harding has been invited and also a number of Republicans considered as prospective candidates for president, United States senator or governor, including ex-Governor Myron T. Herrick, ex-Senator Theodore E. Burton, Governor Willis, ex-Senator Charles Dick, Harry M. Daugherty and ex-Congressman Ralph D. Cole.

FAVORS POOLS FOR COMMERCE

Los Angeles, Aug. 24.—Many witnesses who appeared here before the United States trade commission declared they favored pools or combinations for the benefit of foreign commerce. They were divided, however, upon the scope and application of such combines. They also favored amending the national anti-trust law to permit such trade agreements. The witnesses agreed that trade expansion depended primarily upon extension of credits and adequate shipping facilities.

Stoddard Jess, a banker, advocated an amendment to the anti-trust laws permitting combinations of men engaged in foreign trade to meet like combinations organized in other countries.

MORE NOTORIETY COMES TO HELEN

New York, Aug. 24.—Helen Woodruff Smith of Stamford, Conn., defendant in the recent "Ruzzie Lamb" breach of promise suit and former wife of Homer S. Cummings, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, is lying dangerously ill in Port Chester, as the result of an automobile accident at Rye, N. Y. Raoul Lemat, the aviator, who was in the car, was also seriously injured.

WILL ATTACK GERRYMANDER

Columbus, Aug. 24.—Chairman Finley of the Democratic state executive committee stated that he expected to file the petition for a referendum on the Sprague congressional gerrymander law by the end of this week. He said the referendum was assured. The petition must be filed before Sept. 2.

WILSON'S GIFTS TO BRAVE MEN

New York, Aug. 24. — Captain William T. Aspinall of the British liner Gregory received through the British consul in this city a gold watch with gold cable chain and gold compass from the president of the United States. The watch is appropriately engraved and has on the outside the arms of the American government.

The watch and chain were presented to Captain Aspinall in recognition of the services of himself and of several members of his crew in rescuing five sailors of the wrecked steamship Oklahoma on Jan. 4, 1914. Second Officer John S. Williams and Third Officer F. D. Roberts, who jumped into a raging sea and rescued the sailors, have since been killed in France in the English trenches. Just before they went to the front they received binoculars from the president.

Newspaper Advertising

Goes direct to the people and the people constitute the buying public. Newspaper advertising not only talks but it emphasizes; it has the undivided attention of the reader and covers a field no salesman can hope to reach. There are many styles in newspaper advertising and the small announcement, which costs only five cents, is just as effective in its way as the larger one, which costs proportionately more. The benefits to be derived can not be measured by the size of the ad, for the very good reason that the small, inexpensive announcement invariably proves effective. Newspaper advertising costs from five cents up to any price the advertiser desires to pay.

Bowser Runs Out Nights

But Mrs. Bowser Puts a Stop to It.

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

It so happened that four men, all known to each other and to Mr. Bowser, gathered in his office the other afternoon. After some general talk one of the men said:

"It was funny about Bebee, was it not?"

"What was it?" was asked.

"Why, he started for his lodge the other night, and Mrs. Bebee followed him, and he had to go back home with her."

"Humph! I'd like to see my wife play such a trick on me!"

"So would I."

"And I."

"It seems that Bebee has been a booby ever since his marriage—that is, he has never gone out of an evening without telling his wife where he was going and about what time he would be home. Therefore when he broke over the rule the other evening she thought something awful was about to happen."

"I began married life," said Saunders, "by going and coming as I pleased. For the first two or three evenings my wife wanted to know all about it, but after that I got her into training. I simply get ready and go when I want to go, and she asks no questions. Sometimes I get home at 10 o'clock and sometimes not until 1 in the morning, but no questions are asked and no row raised. She quickly came to realize, as every wife ought to, that the fewer questions she asked the fewer lies I would tell her. If I had been in Bebee's place I should have gently lifted her over the first fence and gone along to my lodge."

When the quartet had gone Mr. Bowser had some thinking to do and soon exclaimed to himself:

"By thunder, I am like Bebee! I have never yet gone out of a night without Mrs. Bowser asking a dozen questions. I can't go out to play a game of bowls or dominoes or to smoke a cigar with an old crony but it is:

"Mr. Bowser, are you going out this evening?"

"I thought I would."

"Where are you going?"

"To the bowling club, I guess."

"Where is it?"

"Oh, about four blocks away."

"But what is the street and number?"

"It is 224 Franklin street."

"And you are going to go straight there?"

"Yes."

"And come home about 10 o'clock?"

"And then she looks at me as if she would read my guilty heart, and I can see great chunks of doubt in either eye. If I go out I can't bowl for shucks, and if I stay home I am mad all the evening. Yes, I have been as much a booby as Bebee is, but by the great horn spoon I will be a booby no longer! If I cannot run myself Mrs. Bowser shall not run me!"

Several times during the day Mr. Bowser thought of the situation, and each time he did he brought his fist down on his knee and very nearly shouted:

"No, by John, she shall not!"

When Mr. Bowser came home to dinner that evening he was rather bland and smiling, but at the same time he had a way about him that meant to show her he was boss of the roost. She was his wife, but there was a gulf between them. Of course Mrs. Bowser was quick to notice the change, but she made no remarks calculated to draw him out. Mr. Bowser finished his dinner a quarter of an hour sooner than usual and shoved back and went upstairs. Later on Mrs. Bowser found him walking to and fro in the sitting room, with hat and cane in hand and a cigar in his mouth. He was apparently waiting to question or be questioned, but both looked at each other and had nothing to say except to themselves.

"I wonder if he is going out," mentally queried Mrs. Bowser of herself. "She must know that I am going out," said Mr. Bowser. "Why doesn't she ask me where I am going?"

Something was said about stopping at the grocery to order some things forgotten by the cook, and then Bowser walks right outdoors and up the street. Mrs. Bowser opened the door wide enough to peek out and see which way he went, and as she closed it she said:

"Mr. Bowser has taken a new tack, I see. Very well. I'll make him sick of it in less than a week or my name is not Sarah Bowser!"

To give the new experiment a thorough trial Mr. Bowser remained at the club until 1 o'clock in the morning. He surely expected a row when he reached home, but there was no row. Mrs. Bowser had left a light for him and had been asleep for two or three hours. She did not awaken when he came upstairs, though he purposely made considerable of a racket.

Nothing about the matter was said at breakfast, and he went away with a feeling that somehow or other he had not gained such a great victory after all. When he came home at night he was still carrying that gulf between them. At the dinner table she remarked that it had been a fine day, and he agreed with her.

Then he remarked that pork chops had gone up 2 cents more a pound, and she replied that it was perfectly awful.

He might have noticed that she was hurrying her dinner a bit, but he didn't. He was therefore a little surprised when she asked to be excused and left the table. It was his turn to follow upstairs. He didn't find her on the lounge with a headache as he had expected to. As he stood looking around the room she came downstairs fully dressed, and after telling him to charge the cook to see that the kitchen door was locked when she went to bed she passed down the hall and the front door closed after her. She was going out, but where?

"By Jinks, but that's cool!" said Mr. Bowser as he looked after her. "Meb-be she's heard the story of Bebee the booby and is going to try my little game herself."

After about ten minutes he left the house for the Domino club, but after playing three or four games and losing every one, owing to the abstraction of mind, he started for home. He hoped to find Mrs. Bowser there. Vain hope. She had not returned. The cook was just going up to bed, and Mr. Bowser asked:

"Did you know that Mrs. Bowser was going out this evening?"

"No more than I knew you were going out last night," was the rather impudent answer.

"Is there a church festival?" he continued.

"Not that I know of, sir."

"Is any one in the neighborhood sick that they would want her services?"

"I haven't heard of any one."

"It's darned funny," mused Bowser as the girl passed on. "Walked right out the house without a word. I can't understand it."

From 10 o'clock till midnight Mr. Bowser smoked four cigars. He also walked to and fro. He also talked to the cat. He also tried to read. It was no use. He kept wondering and wondering and wondering. When the clock struck 12 he said:

"I'll be hanged if I'll wait any longer for her. I'll go to bed. This thing will have to be explained in the morning."

It might have been an hour after midnight, or it might have been an hour before daybreak that Mrs. Bowser came home. Mr. Bowser never knew. He was asleep and dreaming that Mrs. Bowser had run away with a fruit peddler. As for the explanation, none was asked for. She hadn't asked for one, and how could he? It was what they call strained relations between the two at breakfast, but it ended there.

Dinner time, and Mr. Bowser came again. At the office during the day he hadn't grinned nor chuckled a single time, but instead had carried a very sober face. At home the cook had started to open the conversation with Mrs. Bowser, but all the reply she received was a wink or something that might be taken for a wink. The cook knew that a wink signifies "It is all right, you know," and she was content.

There wasn't much conversation at the dinner table. There was too much hurry for that.

Both finished their meal at the same time.

Both went upstairs at the same time.

Both were ready to go out at the same time, but Mrs. Bowser drew back and waited for five minutes. Mr. Bowser walked across the street and took shelter behind a shade tree. Mrs. Bowser passed out of the back door and the alley gate, and Mr. Bowser therefore missed seeing her. After waiting for awhile he started out for a walk, and at the end of five blocks he came face to face with her. She was strolling and enjoying the evening air.

Both stopped, but not a word passed for a full minute. Then they started for home, arm in arm. When they had reached the privacy of the sitting room Mr. Bowser turned on her and said:

"Mrs. Bowser, I have the right to ask where you go at night?"

"So have I," she retorted.

"Must a husband explain every little thing to his wife?"

"Must a wife explain every little thing to her husband?"

And they looked at each other and began to grin, and in a few seconds the grin was a laugh.

"I shall be home tomorrow night," said Mr. Bowser.

"So shall I," replied Mrs. Bowser.

And if the reader calls any evening hour up to 11 o'clock he will find them both there and seemingly very content.

THE SECRETARY BIRD.

It Kicks Like a Mule and Can Swallow a Snake Whole.

The rarest and most valuable birds in the New York zoological garden are the strange pair of secretary birds quartered in the ostrich house. "Secretary birds" they are called because of the crest of long dark plumes that rises from the back of their heads, giving them the appearance of a clerk with a bunch of quill feathers behind his ear. It's an aristocratic name, but the thing that makes the secretary bird valuable is not his looks. The natives of South Africa love him because he can kick like a mule.

Toss into his cage a snake, no matter how vicious, and the fight begins immediately. The bird cautiously approaches the snake with wings wide-spread to escape the sudden lunges by flight if necessary. Once, twice, three times perhaps the snake lunges. The bird darts back, waiting his chance. At last it comes, and one of those long, hard legs shoots out like the hoof of a mule, landing squarely on the snake's head. It reels and falls back stunned to be knocked out completely by a second blow. And then its victor proceeds to swallow it whole.

In South Africa the birds are regarded as a great protection. They are affectionate mates and always travel together. When pursued they spread their wings and make off over the ground with the speed of a running horse.—Every Week.

INDIAN SUMMER.

The Term May Have Had Its Origin In the Far East.

The origin of the term "Indian summer," like that of the word "blizzard," has been the subject of much research. It has been traced back only as far as the latter part of the eighteenth century, and it did not become common until after the first decade of the nineteenth.

Many explanations of the name have been offered, all of which assume the term "Indian" used in this connection refers to the American Indians.

A recent note in the Monthly Weather Review calls attention to a totally different use of this term, in which the reference is not to the American Indians, but to East India.

Under the British board of trade regulations one of the load lines marked on ships bears the initials "I. S.," the being the maximum depth to which vessels can be loaded for voyages during the "Indian summer"—i. e., the first season in the Indian seas.

How long has the term "Indian summer" been used in this sense? It is not recorded in any dictionary nor apparently in any work on meteorology. Is it possible that our autumnal Indian summer was so named by sailors or travelers who saw in it a resemblance to the fine weather attending the northeast monsoon in India?

A Candid Caller.

A small boy had been coerced into making an afternoon call with his mother. He had rebelled vehemently over the calling business, saying: "Aw, what you want to make me go there for? She hasn't any boys, and it would be any fun."

But, dressed in his best suit, he had put on his company manners and had behaved very well indeed, and when their hostess served refreshments he began to feel glad that he had come.

When it came time to leave he held out his hand, saying gallantly:

"Goodbye; I've had a good time"—and then, right while his young mother was beaming her approval, he added honestly—"a whole lot better time than I expected to have."—Indianapolis News

NEW HOLLAND IS POPULAR PLACE

A number of New Holland citizens have launched forth on the sea of matrimony during the past few days, as attested by the following licenses issued in Pickaway county.

John W. Wood, 20, laborer, New Holland, and Mary A. Jones, 19, Perry township, Pickaway county. Rev. A. L. Brokaw.

Delbert D. Jones, 23, farmer, Alice Viola Wood, 17, New Holland. Rev. A. L. Brokaw.

William Wesley Helsel, 23, Washington C. H., laborer, and Norma Baker, 18, New Holland. Rev. A. L. Brokaw.

B. & O. SHOPS TAKE C. H. & D. REPAIRING

The failure of the Lima car shops to handle all repairing of C. H. & D. rolling stock desired, has resulted in 100 cars being transferred to Chillicothe for repairs.

In this manner it is hoped to place all available cars in condition for service.

Consistent.

Mrs. Exe—Here's an invitation from Mrs. Boreleigh to one of her tiresome dinners. I hate them. Exe—Why not plead a previous engagement? Mrs. Exe—That would be a lie. Edith, dear, write Mrs. Boreleigh that we accept with pleasure.—Boston Transcript.
